Tri-Cities Ambulance operations manager Bob Lee before the sparks started flying at yesterday's planning commission hearing.

New ambulance home

Planners okay site after angry debate

PLEASANTON — An angry Tri-Cities Ambulance operator stormed out of the city planning commission's meeting late yesterday afternoon moments before his firm won a watered down victory over angered Pleasanton Valley homeowners.

The commission's decision, sure to inspire an appeal before the city council, gives the firm permission to operate their ambulance service from a home at 2297 Tanager Dr. on the corner of Mohr Avenue.

A handful of neighbors complained to the commission, citing similar objections used by Val Vista track homeowners when the company was bounced from its Guyson Court enclave.

The commission split deeply on the issue, with commissioner Dave Shepherd reluctantly joining acting chairman Walt Wood in voting for approval.

Shepherd said there should be no question and no set of prohibitive conditions on the ambulance service.

At the other end of the spectrum sat commissioner Bill Jamieson, whose caustic closing remarks sparked the clash.

Jamieson said the commission "perhaps is skirting the real issue . . If these people (ambulance attendants) were paid enough, maybe they could go home at night."

Tri-Cities Ambulance operations manager Bob Lee bolted from his seat, ignoring warnings to sit down.

How, he asked Jamieson, would the commission like it if "we had to waste another 10 minutes to rescue" a child.

Before Lee was through the door, one of the ambulance attendants, blistering with anger, joined in the barrage, telling the commission to "get your own ambulance."

Before the clash, Lee told commissioners his firm had contacted "every realtor in Pleasanton and Dublin" to find a suitable home, and that Tanager Drive is the only one available.

The crew is being evicted from Guyson Court Friday morning.

They cannot use the city fire house because some crew members are women, and the city, since it has not yet hired women fire fighters, has no accomodations for them.

Under the compromise, the ambulance will be restricted to Mohr Avenue until it gets to Santa Rita Road, and may neither speed nor use its siren until it reaches the main thoroughfare.

Additionally, they'll have to build a concrete parking pad in the back yard, and zip on to Mohr Avenue without using Tanager Drive.

Pleasanton thinks I-680's beautiful

Alameda County Bureau

Interstate 680, winding deliriously from Suisun City to Santa Cruz, could become a State Scenic Route pocked with poppy emblems and a protectionist corridor of up to 1000 feet.

County planning officials are working with Pleasanton and Fremont to present plans to the state. If Sacramento accepts the idea, the designation would make I-680 eligible for "esthetic" building and extensive landscaping.

The "scenic route" would create a corridor of up to 1000 feet from the highway "to ensure that scenic views are not blocked or the development itself is compatible with enjoyment of scenery," according to the county planning department.

"Development would be regulated to protect the scenic qualities of the area," said planner Bruce Fry. "It's not to preclude development, but to accommodate development and the view."

County planning commissioners will consider the proposal at 1:30 p.m., July 18, in the Public Works Building, 399 Elmhurst St., Hayward.

The same appellation could be given I-580. Parts of the east — west freeway in Oakland and the county's eastern extremity at the San Joaquin County line already are designated "scenic routes."

Signs with painted poppies, the state flower, would dot the highway to point out the route. Eventually, the official emblem would appear on highways throughout the state.

Pleasanton is coordinating its effort with the county, but the plans are young.

The cities and county will present their plans to the state for final approval.

The county claims the appellation will add "prestige and possible tourism value" to the communities. The City of Oakland reportedly fought hard to have its stretch of I-580 included in the program.

But the Capitol has thrown up some major road blocks to the program, principally objections from CalTrans (the Department of Transportation), and a lack of personnel for the Northern California sector.

The program, said one representative, "is not popular with CalTrans."

Individual cities and counties, including Alameda County, have supplemented the program with locally designated "scenic routes."

Geldermann, general plan face trial

Alameda County Board of Supervisors will meet at 7:30 p.m. today at Harvest Park School to conduct a public hearing on the proposed amendments to the county general plan.

The board will ask testimony about the future holding capacity of the Valley, specifically sentiment on Harlan Geldermann's plan to add 45,000 people in the unincorporated area of the Las Positas Valley north of Livermore. A decision is expected in a couple of months. This is a public hearing only. A board decision is expected in a couple of months.

Too late to stop a Bay Area pioneer

PLEASANTON — A pair of city councilmen are stymied in their attempt to "wipe out" Skate World, Northern California's first skateboard park slated for development at I-580 — I-680.

Councilmen Ken Mercer and Frank Brandes said they were "shocked" this week to learn the city's planning commission had approved a conditional use permit.

"Skate World," scheduled to pen in August, will be next to "Tennis Town," another recreational attraction at the former Reynold C. Johnson building.

But "Skate World" will draw bicycling youngsters down heavily truck traveled Johnson Industrial Drive, the councilmen fear.

"I'm absolutely amazed this thing got by the planning commission," said Brandes.

"Skate World" will open with three banked skateboard runs, game room, snack bar, pro and rental shops on one and one-half acres.

"It would be hard to line out skate boards in an ordinance," city attorney Ken Scheidig told the council. Th e citizen's letter of complaint to Mercer came too late.

Minority contracts spurred

Alameda County Supervisors have asked for a staff analysis and recommendation regarding stepped up use of minority contractors for public jobs.

This request comes on the eve of a call for bids, within a few weeks, on some $35 million in estimated county financed construction, including new courts and a jail. See further details, page 2.

Livermore schools' windfall

Livermore Unified School District officials are pleased with a precedent setting windfall of $100,000 from the Energy Research and Development Agency (ERDA) in lieu of tax revenue not required of the government controlled Lawrence Livermore Laboratory.

Gene Johnson, director of construction for the Golden Gate Business League, is urging the county to adopt a new policy increasing the percentage use of minority firms from a minimum 10 per cent to 33 per cent. Further details on Page 4.

Job recruiter due

CETA on Wheels, the federal anti - poverty job recruiter in a van, will make an appearance at South L and 5th Streets in Livermore July 18.

The counselors who staff the van are available to talk about job openings and the job application process and counsel people about jobs and job training.

Won't drop San Ramon Mafia suit

MARTINEZ — A Superior Court judge has refused to dismiss charges against KGO-TV and the American Broadcasting Co. alleging that they libeled a San Ran Ramon family by identifying them as Mafia figures.

The defendants pleaded Wednesday that the suit filed by the Ronald Catala family should be dismissed because of insufficieent charges, but Judge Martin Rothenberg overruled the motion, setting the stage for a trial at a later date.

Defense attorneys have 30 days to amend their plea.

The lawsuit, which is asking for $4 million in damages, stems from an incident in March when KGO broadcast film on the 6 and 11 p.m. news shows showing Catala and his two brothers, James and David, arriving at the San Francisco airport.

The news story then identified James as Mafia boss "Big Vinnie" Teresa, according to the suit.

The report also included a film of the Catala's home, which was identified as a "Mafia house."

Teresa, a former underworld figure in the U.S. government's witness protection program, reportedly had been living in Hawaii, according to William Gagen Catala's attorney.

There had been speculation that Teresa would be coming through San Francisco Feb. 24 on his way to a new "hiding place."

KGO ran a retraction on the story three weeks after the broadcast.

Dublin Foremost

Now your wine, cheese together

DUBLIN — The savory combination of wine and cheese has undergone a new twist since cheese whey is being turned into "pop" wine through experimentation at Foremost Foods Research and Development Center in Dublin.

This project is the result of a ban regarding the disposal of liquid whey in sewers, according to Gaylord M. Palmer. He is Group Leader of Process Development at Foremost Foods Research and Development Center.

Whey is the high-protein residue from cheese-making. Since the substance overloads sewage treatment plants, the United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) decreed whey cannot be disposed of in sewers as of July, 1977.

Palmer said, based on 1973 figures, 13 billion pounds of fluid whey is not utilized annually. The whey-wine project is one method being tried to find a use for the residual product. Large dairies already convert whey to dry powder which is valuable as a nutritional additive to food products ranging from bread to ice cream.

The proposed "pop" wine will probably be a sweet, lightly carbonated, berry - flavored drink, ac-

The county: more crime than health

Alameda County may be sparing health and social services budgets to pour more money into a justice department budget which already is too fat, Supervisors Valerie Raymond and John George believe.

The board's two newest supervisors have pointed out that nearly half — $1.50 of a projected tax rate total of $3.11 — goes to the justice budget. If there is a part of the budget that may stand trimming, it's the

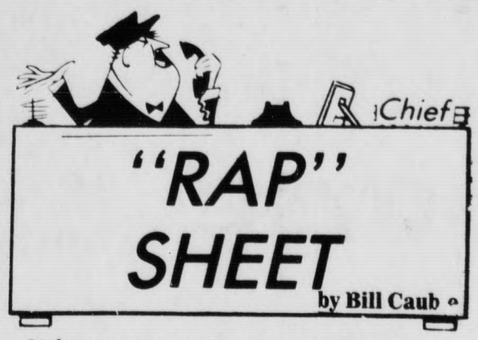
Downtown Pleasanton stores open late tonight



Stolen car recovered; two suspects arrested

SUNOL — Two men suspected of stealing a car from Fairfield were arrested in front of the Temple Bar on Main Street Monday morning. A third suspect is being sought.

Sheriff's Deputy Will Lucero spotted the car and followed it to the bar about 11 a.m. Monday. Three men jumped out, two entering the bar from the front and one from the rear.

When back-up assistance arrived, deputies arrested two suspects. The third suspect escaped police.

George Albert Caraballo, 22, was booked on suspicion of auto theft, and for outstanding warrants charging armed robbery, grand theft and a $1500 traffic warrant.

Michael Eugene Harrison, 18, was booked on suspicion of auto theft.

The third suspect reportedly returned to the Temple Bar later that day to ask about his companions, deputies reported. The investigation is continuing.

$2,650 in jewelry taken; purse recovered

LIVERMORE — A purse containing an estimated $2,650 in jewelry, taken from an unlocked car on Grace Street last week, was found on the rooftop of Joe Michell School.

Sandra Lee Howard reported the theft of her purse June 23. It was taken from her car, which was parked in her Grace Street driveway. The purse was later recovered from a classroom building rooftop, still containing two rings and a credit card.

Witnesses reported seeing four youths examining what could have been the purse last week. The investigation is continuing.

Jewelry taken from King Way home

DUBLIN — Jewelry and other valuables worth an estimated $2,195 were reported stolen Friday from a King Way house which was up for sale.

Lynn M. Ware told deputies that the house was locked, and no signs of forced entry were reported. Missing items include an assortment of rings, earrings, necklaces, bracelets and charms, a Channelmaster walkie-talkie, and $75 cash. There are no suspects.

Flasher makes appearance at laundry room

LIVERMORE — A red-bearded man reportedly exposed himself to a woman in the laundry room of a Charlotte Way apartment building Monday, police reported.

The woman said a bearded man, wearing only blue swimming trunks, was polite as she entered and removed her clothes from a dryer. As she was leaving, the man said "Goodbye," and as she turned to respond, noticed he had doffed his trunks.

The suspect is described as a white man, about 5 foot 9, 160 pounds with red shoulder length hair and a reddish beard.

Stolen car recovered, then burglarized in lot

DUBLIN — After police recovered her stolen car and stored it at Crown Chevrolet's lot last week, Vickie Durkee must have been surprised to discover the wheels and tires missing when she returned to claim the car.

Deputies said the car was complete with its wheels when stored at the Dublin Boulevard lot Friday. She discovered the theft Monday.

Missing are four Cragen mag wheels with four B.F. Goodrich tires, valued at $700. There are no suspects.

Little League shacks burglarized

LIVERMORE — Burglars broke into two buildings operated by the Livermore American Little League Monday, stealing several traffic cones and causing moderate damage.

The door to the scorekeeper's building was pried open and $75 worth of traffic pylons were taken, police said. Burglars also smashed a hole in the snack shack wall and pushed over a soft drink fountain. Total loss was estimated at $185.

Camera equipment, computer taken from car

LIVERMORE — An unlocked car allowed burglars to steal camera gear and a Lawrence Livermore Laboratory computer from an unlocked car Tuesday, police reported.

James Duane Hanson reported the theft from his car. Missing items include a Zeiss Ikon camera with driver's license number R719861 engraved on it, a Gossen light meter, and a mini-computer.

Hanson was unsure as to where the theft occurred. The camera equipment was valued at $275; no value was placed on the computer.

TV, stereo taken from locked house

DUBLIN — Burglars broke a living room window to enter a San Ramon Valley Boulevard home Monday and stole $600 in electronic gear, deputies reported.

Ronald Harold Mardirosian reported the theft of his Sony TV and Sansui brand stereo receiver. There are no suspects.

AC in Dublin, but, cards in Oakland

DUBLIN — A lot of senior citizens were disappointed yesterday when they showed up at Shannon Community Center to get their AC Transit discount identification cards and learned there weren't enough to go around.

The slip up was due to human error on the part of the AC Transit employe who drove over here from Oakland to hand out the cards at Shannon Center. The apologetic woman "thought sure she had more with her" but didn't.

Brian May, senior recreation director at Shannon Center, said the woman planned to come back in two weeks. He said a lot of seniors had showed up but they had also come for another purpose so all was not lost.

The AC Transit's Bay Region Transit Discount Center issues discount identification cards to senior citizens 65 years or older and to handicapped persons.

Ordinarily, they disperse the cards at 508 16th St., Oakland. On Monday and Wednesday they go to other areas as a convenience to seniors and handicapped.

There is no charge for the cards.

The card is good on AC Transit, BART, Golden Gate Transit, San Francisco Municipal Railway, Santa Clara County Transit, Santa Rosa Municipal Railway, Petaluma Municipal Transit, Vallejo Transit and San Mateo County Transit.

Handicapped persons should telephone for information at 654-7878 ext. 247.

County cut of heritage unit seen

It may be time to get rid of Alameda County's subsidy for the Bicentennial Commission, Supervisors Joseph Bort and Fred Cooper suggested this week.

The issue isn't that the commission is out of date, now that 1976 has passed.

The group has been concentrating on ethnic heritage, with plans to change its name to Heritage Unlimited in a few months.

People qualified for federal job - training money have been added and the $11,000 in county subsidy already promised the group is needed to back up the CETA program, said Director Marie Cronin of Dublin.

Although the federal government pays the CETA employes, they need counseling and other services and the overhead in the donated office space must be paid, said Cronin. That's why the $11,000 is needed, she said.

County contracts

Minority firms ask bigger share

Alameda County should raise the goal of minority business participation in county - funded construction jobs to 33 per cent, county supervisors were told this week.

Gene Johnson, director of construction for the Golden State Business League, said that it's time the county raised the current goal of 10 per cent minority participation.

Johnson urged the supervisors to adopt a policy of working toward a 33 per cent minority participation goal in three years, with the figure next year to be 16.5 per cent or "halfway toward the 33 per cent figure."

The request is timely because supervisors are expected to call for contractors' bids in a couple of weeks on $35 million worth of county - financed construction of new courts and a jail.

Contractors as far away as New York City are interested in bidding on the job, said Johnson. It would be better for local contractors to have a good shot at the contracts so the money will remain in the county and Bay Area, he said. And it will be even better if a higher percentage of those contractors are minority persons, said Johnson.

A look at work done so far by contractors for the county shows minority small business persons participating at a 9 per cent rate, said Johnson, or about $250,000 of the work out of $2.7 million in contracts.

Supervisors appeared sympathetic, but they want a staff report analyzing past participation with recommendations for the future.

Supervisor Fred Cooper, whose district includes a large minority population in East Oakland, said he was concerned about a few minority contractors getting rich while other good, though smaller, minority contractors miss out.

The two biggest minority contractors for the county live on the Peninsula and in Oxnard, said Cooper. He figures that the county's rule about awarding contracts only to those who can be bonded might account for the rich getting richer and wondered whether the county might start giving contracts to unbondable people.

Johnson indicated the county could come out all right with such a plan. Bonding has nothing to do with a workperson's quality for the job; it is just a reflection of his or her credit ability, said Johnson. If a minority subcontractor messes up the work, a bonded chief contractor would cover it anyway, said Johnson.

Cooper suggested that when supervisors consider adopting the proposed minority participation goal, they count the hiring of every unbonded minority contractor the same as hiring two bonded minority persons.

The supervisors will deal with the request for change in policy July 12. They will not meet during the July 4 holiday week.

County budget hit on 'justice' cost

justice area, they believe, if for no other reason than it's the one with the most people.

The justice department accounts for the sheriff's department, judges, clerks, bailiffs, public defenders, probation officers and district attorneys.

This year, County Administrator Loren Enoch has recommended that nearly a dozen deputy district attorneys and a like number of public defenders be added to the staff just because of one change in law. Previously probation officers filed complaints against juvenile criminals, but now the job will be up to district attorneys. And if you hire them, you have to hire public defenders to defend them, since they often do not have the means to hire a private attorney.

Raymond has a few questions about it for staff. Can the defendant who needs a public defender pay part of his or her own way? Are judges assigning them willy - nilly just because they are available from what may be considered a generous budget?

It's a matter of values. Do you spend the money to hire a legal filing clerk so that attorneys don't have to wait five minutes to file a suit or do you spend that money on a medical person so that someone won't have to wait a long time for treatment at Highland Hospital?

The justice department budget has doubled in five years; maybe it's time to ask some questions about shrinking the costs, said Raymond.

George asks the same questions. He's doing it at the eleventh hour because, in his opinion, the budge was presented so that a lot of relevant information was not readily apparent. He wanted to arrange extra study sessions about some items, but was discouraged by veteran board members and staff.

Perhaps the only hope of reforming the justice department will come from the state, said George.

In the wind is a bill which would consolidate all of the municipal courts in the county. The centralization would save common costs and probably lead to more staff efficiency, according to George.

Cause of brush fire unknown

A fire of unknown origin charred two acres of wilderness on the west bank of Del Valle Lake yesterday aternoon but caused no injuries.

An East Bay Regional Parks District helicopter ferried firefighters into the rough, sloping terrain about 2 p.m. Firefighters from the State Division of Forestry and the Alameda County Fire Patrol joined in the operation.

There were no indications of how the fire got started.

Turning whey into wine

cording to Palmer. He said the alcoholic content would be 8 or 9 per cent. It will be bottled in standard one-fifth of a gallo bottles, Palmer said. But he had no idea what the final product would cost.

The Foremost whey-wine is still in the experimental stage.

"It should be ready soon," Palmer said.

He reported the whey-wine had a good flavor but still needed work.

"Anyone selling Pinot Noir doesn't have to worry."

Palmer declared he had no idea who will make the wine or where it will be made after Foremost completes the experimentation and test marketing.

"Maybe it can be made by a cheesemaker with a wine-making license," he quipped.

Actually, part of the Foremost project is aimed at proving the concept would apply at an actual dairy plant in relation to their production scale.

The only additional equipment a cheese plant would need to make whey wine is a special filtration device and an ion exchange or electrodyalisis device for removing some of the whey salt to improve taste, Palmer indicated.

Palmer said he expects the project will be completed and results published by next Spring.

George Spiliotopoulos, owner of The Cheese Factory in Pleasanton, said he had heard of preliminary whey-wine research that had been done at Oregon State University on a small scale.

That University had done their project as a result of the EPA ban. EPA has financed the University and Foremost research projects in an effort to help dairies.

Spiliotopoulos said he was definitely interested in research findings.

"We have done some expansion work here and have kept possibility of handling the whey product in mind," he said. "However, I hope we don't have to actually make wine on the premises."

Spiliotopoulos said his cheese-factory had to worry daily about disposing of 5000 gallons of whey.

Bay Area lawmakers supported pay boost

WASHINGTON — East Bay lawmakers all voted Wednesday to keep the $12,900 Congressional pay raise that went into effect earlier this year.

Rep. George Miller, D-Martinez, Fortney H. "Pete" Stark, D-Oakland, and Rep. Ronald D. Dellums, D-Berkeley, voted against an amendment that would have repealed the 29 per cent salary boost.

The votes of Miller, Dellums and Stark were in line with their earlier positions on the pay raise. In April, Rep. Otis Pike, of New York, offered an amendment to symbolically slash the pay raise money from next year's spending goals. Pike's amendment failed with the East Bay lawmakers all opposing it.

On Tuesday, Miller, Dellums and Stark voted against a routine cost of living pay raise for Congress.

The serious side of skateboards

"Can I make it?" would seem to be the thought running through Mat Bezmarenich's mind as he guides his skateboard toward the bar on the slalom course at Walt Disney Elementary School in San Ramon. Mat is one of some 100 youngsters learning the finer — and safer — points of riding skateboards at a special summer course.

By BARBARA COHEN
Times Staff Writer

SAN RAMON — To the casual observer, skateboarding may seem frivolous. But for some 30 first and second graders in San Ramon, it's serious business.

So serious, in fact, they've enrolled in a special summer school skateboarding course at San Ramon's Walt Disney Elementary school.

Already 100 students are enrolled in the two classes and more are on a waiting list.

And even when the temperature passed the egg-frying stage as it did several times last week, the determined 6, 7 and 8-year-olds were busily snaking through an obstacle course and hurling themselves onto a cushioned mat in an effort to learn the proper method of falling off a board.

"They all know more than the teacher," said a heavily perspiring Joe Bagan, 26-year-old instructor for the course.

"Their physical ability is amazing. These kids are so involved, they don't really need a teacher.

"Most have already ridden before coming to class and most learn by trial and error," said Bagan, a bearded, stocky man who learned to ride a skateboard when he was 12.

"The main thing they learn," he explained as 7-year-old Todd Calvert whizzed around the orange cones of the slalom course, "is how to balance their weight."

Obviously pleased with his extaordinary performance, Todd credited his expertise to almost constant practice during the last six months.

The best thing about the class, said the wiry youngster in a black and white mesh jersey with "Suzuki" emblazoned across the front, "is learning hang five and 10."

That means draping either five or 10 toes over the front of the board — something not recommended for the faint at heart.

"It makes you feel like a pro," said Todd.

Then, rolling away for a repeat performance, he shouted over his shoulder, "Why don't you time me?"

But not all the students skate with Todd's agility.

Robin Fallowfield took a spill as she attempted the obstacle course for the first time. "I feel so embarrassed when I fall," said the plucky 6-year-old, her blonde ponytail bouncing as she spoke.

Bagan understandingly led her off to the side for a few minutes of special instruction and encouragement.

Bagan, a third grade teacher during the regular school year, says he expects "a lot of spills and a lot of tears" before the course is through. "There'll also be a lot of cuts and bruises — especially with short pants on hot days," he added philosophically.

Skateboarder Sean Macomber makes a clean pass under the bar.

County sees rule shift in housing

The federal government is forcing a shift in public housing rental programs which is working out well for senior citizens and small families, but is hurting large families and welfare recipients.

That was the contention this week from Harvey Levy of the Alameda County Housing Authority.

Levy told the board of supervisors that the federal government is pressuring the local housing authorities to drop their Section 23 rental programs to switch to Section 8.

Under Section 23, the housing authority has been able to lease units from private owners, then turn around and rent to tenants. This works well because the housing authority has the freedom to put large families and welfare recipients in the housing agency's "own units".

But under Section 8, tenants seek their own housing from private owners; the housing authority merely approves the units and the rent levels, if they meet standards of the program. The resuit has been fewer large houses and apartments made avalable to needy tenants, said Levy.

The federal government has announced it won't give Alameda County any Section 23 funds at all, unless the county makes a commitment now to start switching to Section 8, said Levy.

Levy has asked Congressional Representative Pete Stark to work on the problem. Supervisor Fred Cooper said Stark might have some effect, since he is on the Congressional banking committee which controls some aspects of the housing program.

Cooper also suggested that Levy alert other housing authorities to the problem and write to Stark in concert.

Drop tax rate

Cut CCC budget call

MARTINEZ — Presented with a $252.8 million county budget, the Board of Supervisors Tuesday immediately ordered that it be cut so tax bills don't increase more than 7.5 per cent.

That would result in an accompanying cut in the county property tax rate.

The budget, as proposed by County Administrator Arthur Will, is $33.5 million more than this year's $219.3 million outlay.

Nearly half of the increase comes in the public assistance section of the budget, which includes social services and welfare programs.

Under the budget recommended by Will, the tax rate would remain at $2.571 per $100 assessed valuation if a number of recommendations were followed.

That budget is also based on the assumption that the assessed valuation of property in the county averages 14 per cent, thus raising an estimated $88.1 million for the county treasury.

It was at that point supervisors became concerned, with Superior Robert Schroder, Walnut Creek, suggesting the board order that any increase in property tax revenues be limited to 7.5 per cent, about the same as inflation for the past year.

Supervisors James Kenny, Warren Boggess and Eric Hasseltine concurred.

"County taxation and spending should not rise faster than the rate of inflation," said Hasseltine, adding that the county shouldn't collect more than the $76.7 million taken in last year plus 7.5 per cent.

That would mean only an additional $6 million in tax revenue and, because of the 14 per cent assessed valuation increase, would result in a cut in the county property tax rate of roughly 17 cents per $100 assessed value.

Boggess noted there's been aa gradual shift in with industrial property taaxes producing less revenue than residential property taxes.

"If this continues, it could be bad news for homeowwners. This is a basic problem we're going to have to face up to," Boggess said.

If the supervisors put their tax revenue limitation plan into effect, and a tax rate of, say $2.40 per $100 assessed valuation results, taxpayers would pay the county the following:

--Home valued at $100,000: $558

--Home valued at $80,000: $438

--Home valued at $60,000: $318

--Home valued at $40,000: $198.

And if the county tax rate remains the same at $2.571 per $100, the tax bills would be:

--Home valued at $100,000: $597.

--Home valued at $80,000: $469.

--Home valued at $60,000: $340.

--Home valued at $40,000: $212.

Boggess stressed that the 14 per cent estimated increase in assessed valuation of property is the "the result of the highly speculative, inflationary real estate market in California."

That means he said that whil tax rates may remain the same, the increased value of properties will produce more tax revenues for government to spend.

Schroder, who sits on the supervisors' finance committee, declared that "taxpayers are saying we can no longer afford the levels of service we've had in the past.

"I look at what we're going into as similar to self service gas stations. The services are there, but we're going to do a little bit more for ourselves. People will have to fill their own tanks," Schroder said.

Bogess noted that people aren't surprised by tax bill increases that approximate the normal rate of inflation.

But when they're presented with bill increases that double that amount, taxpayers are "surprised and disappointed," Boggess said.

Hasseltine called on other governmental agencies to follow the supervisors' policy of seeing to it that tax revenues don't increase any more than the normal rate of inflation.

The proposed budget, althogugh considerably larger than last year's, will result in a net increase of three employ positions.

Included in Will's proposal is a $9 million increase in the county budget reserve, bringing the reserve total from this year's $2.6 million to $11.8 million.

Will explained that the huge increase in the reserve fund would go to finance increases in employ wages and benefits during the coming year.

He noted there will be increases in the county share of ounty retirement system financing which will come from that money and added there is a possibility the county may have to pay unemployment compensation to workers who are fired or laid off.

On the matter of property taxes, Will said the federal and state governments must provide any susbstantial tax relief to property owners.

His budget called for the supervisors to also use the bulk of next year's federal revenue sharing and public works employment money for items that normally would be paid for from the county treasury.

Will said he and analysts in his office received requests from county department heads that would have resulted in a budtet of $282.3 million.

That amount was whittled to $252.8 million, he said. Will said the county should have $11 million left over from this year's budget to put toward next yea4r.

Further, he said that the county should receive $153.6 million in revenues other than property taxes --an increase of $18.8 million over last year.

Supervisors were also asked to consider a number of expenditures which weren't included in the budget but could be added if deemed warranted. Those items total $3.5 million.

Included in those are $226,000 to beef up patrols by the sheriff's department, $49,378 for a new superior court judge, and $230,000 for new road access and sewers at Buchanan Field.

By law, the budget must be adopted by Aug. 30 and the tax rate no later that Sept. 1.

SRV schools win favor on fed anti-fire grant

DANVILLE— Contra Costa County Supervisors have approved submission of a $400,000 federal grant application by the San Ramon Valley Unified School District that would provide automatic smoke detector systems for every school in the district.

Supervisors gave the go-ahead last week. The detailed funding application must be received in the Seattle federal regional offices by July 7.

Dr. Orrin Batchelor, assistant superintendent for business services, said it is possible the combination smoke detection - rate - of - rise system could be installed in all schools, including Neil Armstrong and Pine Valley in San Ramon, by September. All schools now have a pull alarm system that is tied to the San Ramon Fire Department, Valley Community Services District, and Danville Fire Department.

Only facilities with the modern fire detection systems are the district offices and San Ramon High School.

The grant application is covered by the federal Local Public Works Capital and Investment Program, Public Law 94-369.

A previous application for federal funds, for the district's first priority of building an elementary school on the Tibros site, was not funded.

The district has since elected to sell the Tibros and Sycamore sites and apply those monies and developer policy monies toward construction of a Montevideo school.

The application, which was written by assistant superintendent James Smith, was spurred by a fire last October that gutted Neil Armstrong School on Calais Drive in San Ramon.

The smoke detection - rate - of - rise system that funding would provide is the most up-to-date system available to schools.

When a great accumulation of smoke occurs in a given area the alarm is triggered. Or, if the temperature in a given area should rise at a rapid rate, a signal in the three fire district offices tied to the system is triggered.

A condition of any funding is that work would have to start within 90 days of approval.

Delight at schools' nuclear windfall

LIVERMORE — A quiet sense of excitement pervaded the Livermore School District's meeting room Tuesday when the school board "routinely" accepted more than $100,000 from Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA).

The funds were monies the district would have received if construction of Lawrence Livermore Laboratory had not removed that land from the tax rolls in the early 1950's.

"We are the first school district (in the state) to directly receive money" in this fashion, reported Bruce Jamieson, assistant superintendent for business services.

Jamieson worked closely for three years on the fund acquisition after board member James T. Davis discovered the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 gave ERDA authority to render financial assistance to counties where such taxes were not collected on federal properties.

The requested money included 631.29 acres at LLL, 704 at LLL's Site 300 and 161.51 acres at Sandia Laboratories.

The agreement calls for payment of $70,810.85 as retroactive payments from the year ERDA (then the Atomic Energy Commission) acquired the property. Another $38,032.08 is included for fiscal year 1976-77.

A commitment is included to continue payments in future years based on current assessed valuations of the properties involved.

In other action the board:

— Adopted a $25.8 million tentative budget for next year, following a public hearing when no members of the public testified.

— reviewed a list of priority requests not included the budget.

— offered classified employes (non teaching positions) a guaranteed boost of 5.9 per cent in salary and fringe benefit cost increases. Along with the increase came a promise that any additional funds which may come from the state this year would be tossed into the pot for a total 8.7 per cent increase.

Holding up the bargaining process is a possible organizational choice between two employe organizations, the California School Employes Association which now represents the classified employes and the Teamsters Union which apparently is sought by some CSEA members, according to Jack Waggoner, director of personnel.

Waggoner said a decision is due July 8 from the state's Employe - Employer Relations Board in San Francisco.

The Kottinger Adobe Barn, one of the oldest structures in Pleasanton, was used for one of the area's first jails.

There's a bit of history in these family tours

If you've been living in the area for a while now, and still have only a vague idea about all the history behind the valley, then it's time to head on a ride to find out.

Start in the center of Pleasanton on Ray Street, where you can take a look at the Kottinger Adobe Barn, an old structure that was built in the 1850's, and has been used for one of the first jails in the area. Its owner also had the title on just about half of the downtown area — from Division Street over to Amador High School. And, according to a spokeswoman from the Livermore - Amador Historical Society, it used to be connected by a tunnel to the main house, and prisoners which would be brought through before they began serving time. That should intrigue the kids.

The Pleasanton Hotel on Main Street, of course, is a lovely building that was originally planned to help handle the "tourists" on their way to the Gold Rush. Now a restaurant, the Hotel was built in the 1850"s, and it deserves an appreciative look. It's a beauty.

Century House, personally, is my favorite. It's a stately structure, originally built as a hunting lodge in the middle of a marsh area.

And if you'v got visitors from out of town, drive by some of the beautiful older homes around Second Street, many of which have been lovingly restored and preserved.

Head on to Bernal Avenue and out to Foothill, where there's two old adobes that are among the trees. The Alviso Adobe is a couple of miles toward Dublin on your right. It was used by Francisco Alviso, the rich foreman for Rancho Santa Rita, and it dates back to the 1840's.

Also along Foothill near the turn for Castlewood Country Club is the Augustine Bernal adobe, an old structure that was built around 1850. You'll see two eagle statues on each side of the house, now owned by Walter Johnson.

After you're done there, it's time for a swim. Try Shadow Cliffs Regional Park, on E. Stanley Blvd. in Pleasanton. The water is cool and a swimming area is roped off for parents who want to keep an eye on the kids — though this may be a downer for those who really like to explore the depths and swim for miles.

If you haven't been for awhile, you may be surprised to find a 75 cent parking charge tacked on for every car. But, the place has trees, sand, grass and a snack bar. Good place for a lazy day, a place to wiggle your toes in the grass and sit in the shade — while everyone else gets some exercise.

Ruth Laughlin demonstrates her techniques in food dehydration, carefully drying fruit, vegetables and even meat so that it will keep practically forever.

Dry foods for economy

Looking for a way to preserve those fruits and vegetables without time-consuming canning?

Dry them!

Visitors to the Fair this year can learn the ways and whys of food dehydration in special demonstrations focusing on the various methods of this food preparation technique.

Mrs. Ruth Laughlin, an author and lecturer, will join Mark and Joyce Anderson of Pleasanton for the food demonstrations.

The list of foods that can be dehydrated is endless: chard, onions, apples, peaches, pears, apricots, plums, tomatoes, green peppers, celery and others.

Dehydration, the experts say, is a fine way to preserve food, because it takes very little time, and the food keeps almost forever. In addition, it requires little space. Best of all, the food tastes really good when the process is finished.

Mrs. Laughlin's exhibit on drying and preserving foods can be seen at the Dri-Best booth in the fairgrounds.

A family of chefs

Folks driving down Pleasanton's Greenberry Court are jolted out of their summer somnolence into fits of violent sniffing — good aromas waft out of open windows up and down the street. Someone must be making sausage in one house, while another attracts neighborhood kids with that alluring promise of freshly made fudge.

The Griffiths are just one of the families on Greenberry Court that cooks. Fair-goers will have to settle on feasting with their eyes, however, because only the judges are lucky enough to taste what the family members have entered in the cooking contest.

A safety research and development specialist at the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory, Dick leads his family in cooking honors. Last year the father of three won first place for his white bread and the "Best of Yeast" ribbon for the entire bread category.

Eleven-year-old Jim was the first to enter anything in the Alameda County Fair several years ago, when he decided to give a friend of his some competition in the toothpick sculpture division!

Since then, inspired with baking successes at school — "where all the boys cook" — he has entered cookies, too. Last year, the Walnut Grove student received honorable mention.

Jim's mother, Donna, plans on entering butter-crunch candy in the cooking division's second contest this weekend, and sister Anne, 10, hopes for an instant win with her zucchini bread.

As for the youngest Griffith, five-year-old Julie — well, somebody's got to be official taster!

Dad's hot cross buns are gone in a flash — but luckily everyone in the Griffith family is a good cook, so there's always lots more where they came from! Julie, 5, is the official family taster, but Anne, 10, and Jim, 11, will both be entering the fair's cooking contest along with their parents, Donna and Dick.

Danville Hotel: hit at last

Night life in Danville used to mean a Fourth of July eve visit to Elliot's saloon where the Devil Mountain Brigade would recock their flintlocks, drink the shots heard round the world and warm up for the town's big Independence Day Parade.

Beyond that — zilch.

Then a few years back an architect who knew where to get lots of wood and ferns wholesale built Dan McGrew's Restaurant. It became a culinary and social success, meeting place for anyone not content to sit home evenings watching he Gong Show.

Meanwhile, just last year, another restaurant revival was attempted up Hartz Avenue at the historic and star-crossed Danville Hotel.

They build the Danville Hotel Restaurant and Saloon, descendant of numerous dining halls that had failed before. Only this time the idea caught hold. And suddenly Danville is embroiled in a battle for the night life dollar.

It may be too early to predict ultimate victory, but the Hotel has broken quickly from the gate.

Reservation are vital Friday through Sunday evening, and not a bad idea other times. Sunday brunch is a madhouse and once a month, when the Dixieland band entertains, crowds spill into the parking lot.

Inside the restaurant is moderate - western in decor, with rough-wood panelling and a lot of blacksmith tools on the walls. Carpeting and draperies lift it comfortably out of the bunk house category.

Meals are served by young women who wear a lot of ruffles and sun tans and men big enough to wield the smithie tools or the walls.

They've been trained in the personality business, a key element in Hotel trade.

No one can question its success. I Kitchen performance, however, is uneven.

French-fried zucchini spears are served as a first course, fried in a batter that sometimes turns soggy. They are served with skin left on and the resulting bitter taste spoils the appetizer.

Along with there trend restaurants, the Hotel serves spinach salad. Like most, the dressing is too sweet, the salad over-burdened with bacon chunks. The house salad, romaine with shredded carrots, cucumbers and tomatoes and a properly thin cheese dressing, is far superior. One of the highlights of the meal.

A cream of watercress soup was offered as an alternative.

Much of the dinner menu features Mexican food, along with some basic beef and seafood dishes. Unusual combinations are available, like prime rib and enchilada.

The Mexican dishes are passable, lots of shredded lettuce, sour cream and guacamole, if you like that sort of thing.

Seafood, for the most part is good, with fried lobster an unusual surprise.

Good cuts of prime rib are served, trimmed well, with good aging and flavor. Unfortunately when the beef is ordered medium, it comes blood red. Rare cuts may still be alive.

One of the best entrees is a thickly cut top sirloin steak capped with mushroom and bernaisse sauce. The sauce is pungent, and good, not a weak compromise meant to entice those unsure of bernaisse. Sirloin is excellent, fine flavor, and prepared closer to what is ordered.

Scallop potatoes were served with most dinners. not bad, but rather bland. Two kinds of fresh vegetables were added, rare for most restaurants. Simply prepared spinach was good, but sliced squash was again, bitter.

There is one addition to any dinner, and for some customers, it is the reason they come back to the Hotel.

Instead of bread, sopaipillas are served. These are three-cornered home baked rolls, crisped on the outside like a Monte Cristo sandwich.

But who can argue. A restaurant at Danville Hotel is successful for the first time in more than 20 years. The owners won't ask for more.

A taste of Mally's

The lights never go out at Mally's Restaurant in the heart of downtown Livermore.

Peter Lun, owner of the 24-hour establishment located on First Street, not only offers a fine selection of Chinese and American cuisine but he also has a unique museum which depicts a bit of Western history as it evolved from the guns of the gold rush days.

Peter's most prized weapon of the 60 shotguns and rifles on display is an 1883 Holland and Holland double barrel shotgun.

This 1883 English-made double barrel shotgun is part of the collection at Mally's.

"It sold for about $1,600 back in those days," Peter quipped about the antique hanging on the wall with its original case.

But, Peter's gun collection is not the only reason that customers return to this "homespun" atmosphere.

"Chinese Dinner 'C' is what lured this hungry gatherer of the news into a booth at Mally's.

The waitress promptly greeted us with a cup of hot tea.

From that moment on, any thought of having to fix a late dinner after being stuck in the evening rush hour left to the imagination of Peter and his cooks.

Dinner 'C' — a more than ample meal for two persons priced at $5.45 — starts out with a tastey bowl of chicken and mushroom soup.

Sipping this savory delight can only be described by one word — MORE.

And more is exactly what comes next. Chicken Chow Mein follows the soup portion of the dinner. This filling course is followed by a flood of fine Chinese dishes — it seems to never stop coming from the kitchen.

There is sweet and sour spareribs, pork and egg foo yung, fried shrimp, and pork fried rice.

It was a toss-up between the spareribs and the pork fried rice for dibs on first place.

Before the fortune cookies arrive there is only time to glance at the 19 pistols and 21 swords hanging on the walls behind the counter.

Included in this collection is a German lugar, a derringer, and an assortment of cleavers.

Mally's also has a display in the front window where the careful looker can see a bag of California gold bearing sand; American, Chinese, and Confederate currency; and an 1884 uncirculated silver dollar.

Mally's menu has many things to choose from to meet varying hunger pains of the day and night.

There is an excellent breakfast for $2.25. It includes Ham, Bacon or little pig sausage; two ranch fresh eggs, hash browns, butter, toast and jam.

And for the connoisseur Mally's offers a dinner for $3.95 which is titled "Abalone with black mushrooms and oyster sause.

Regardless of specific tastes or time of day, one of the best features of Mally's has to be their motto — "We never close."

Hap's has fine food

Opal Collings is there to cook the finest in Steaks and seafoods to meet your specifications.

Their buffet - style dining is designed to fit the needs of the hungriest eaters.

Its not necessary to travel all the way to San Francisco to find excellent seafood dinners. They offer abalone and halibut steaks upon request. This Friday evening take the turn off Main Street and join the crowd at Hap's who know where the best in seafood dinners are.

Now: The junk food of TV journalism

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — NBC News, reacting a bit late to rumors of a market for lightweight news, tonight is airing an hour of journalistic gossamer called "Now." It may wind up as a series.

NBC calls it "a mixture of news and entertainment." With apologies to "Star Trek," tonight's effort needs this announcement: "Trivia — the final frontier. These are the voyages of 'Now.'

"Its mission — to explore new fads, to seek out new trends and new lifestyles, to boldly go where neither 'Who's Who' nor People magazine have gone before."

Alas, this tour, cohosted by Jack Perkins and Linda Ellerbee, who each seem to be smiling under duress, does not raise trivia to particularly new heights.

Earnestly jovial, the show declares reggae, the Jamaican pop music, the coming thing. And in the process hypes a new reggae show that Michael Butler, who gave America "Hair," is producing for Broadway.

The most notable happening in this piece comes when Butler, seated in a Jamaican recording studio, casually asks reggae singer Max Romeo: "How about coming up to New York on Monday?"

No doubt to avoid charges of excess frippery, there's a Serious Segment on the much reported Fathers' Rights Movement.

But other items include future nostalia compiled by a UCLA dean and a new movement called "rebirth" where the rebirth recreates the prenatal experience by floating stark naked in a redwood tub.

You may doze through a segment on how women's lib views the new fashions of French designer Yves St. Laurent, the guy they always chronicle when Farrah Fawcett-Majors isn't available.

But stay alert for the piece on the increasing use of copying machines as tools of art, if only to hear a New York artist say: "There's a certain spontaneity in using a Xerox machine that I get ..."

It's shame that Ms. Ellerbee, who usually covers Capitol Hill, and Burbank-based Perkins, who has a wry, whimsical style, were induced to have a go at "Now." It wastes their talents.

The show, the set of which resembles a white waiting room decorated by tranquilized Cubists, tries to be flashy as all get-out.

It even has a neon "Now" that blinks on and off in the manner of a cafe sign advertising "Easts ... eats ... eats."

But flash doesn't prevent it from coming across as just another tube version of People magazine, arriving in a market already swamped by bulletins on whom The Fonz is dating these days.

Nor does it help that in reporting throwaway news its style is akin to that of an exsquare who lets his crewcut grow, attends a rock concert and cries, "Man, that Peter Frampton plays a mean sax!"

Methinks the best thing NBC News could do with trendy "Now" after tonight is declare it passe or retitle the thing "Who Cares?" and see if Charlie's Angels will agree to anchor it.

July 4th test

CHP plans truck watch

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Tailgating and speeding truckers are the prime target of a crackdown that coincides with July 4 holiday enforcement plans, California Highway Patrol Commissioner Glen Craig said Wednesday.

"At least one-half of my correspondence dealing with on highway problems is from citizens upset by truckers who exceed speed limits and follow too closely," Craig said.

Besides added emphasis by all patrol officers toward those violations, four CHP airplanes based at Barstow, El Centro, Coalinga and Sacramento, will be assigned to watch truckers, he said.

Craig said the California Trucking Association is "100 per cent behind the effort, as are many individual trucking companies. This campaign will get those drivers who don't comply."

The commissioner said another new twist to the campaign is cooperation by "a number of judges" who have agreed to accept sworn complaints filed by citizens through the CHP.

"Courts then will subpoena truck company officials and records to identify drivers for subsequent prosecution," Craig said.

The July 4 holiday weekend starts at 6 p.m. Friday and ends at midnight Monday. Thirty-nine persons died in traffic accidents during the same holiday period last year. The worst July 4 holiday weekend on record was 1964 when 84 died.

Reggae music — and the curious Rastafarian cult from which it sprang (on the Caribbean island of Jamaica) — will be one of the topics explored on 'Now,' at 8 p.m. Thursday on Channels 3 and 4. The show provides a look at what is happening and is about to happen in lifestyles, music, art, and fashion.

Office, bank buildings for Pleasanton

PLEASANTON — The business look downtown will perk up if two applicants' plans are approved by the city's planning commission and design review board.

Citizens Savings and Loan wants to leave its trailer headquarters on Main Street and build a 3,840-square-foot building on the corner and a single story, 9,550-square-foot commercial building fronting on Main Street.

And accountants Jim and Jo Betty Allen have asked the design review board to approve plans for a 2,714-square-foot, single-story office building at 480 St. John Street.

Citizens Savings will remove the old temporary building, and provide off-street parking and landscaping with its new building.

The company's sewer hook-up, a rarity during the Valley's current sewer moratorium, could be transferred from the old, temporary building to the new one.

But if the building requires additional connections, the firm will have to apply for one of the few remaining commercial connections.

The Allens, too, are faced with a paucity of sewer connection permits.

The city's design review board will hear the Allen's application at 6:50 p.m., July 13, while planning commissioners will listen to Citizens Savings and Loan at 8 p.m.

Negative Environmental Impact Reports have been filed with both applications.

Planning staff will accept public comment through July 5.

Phone breakthrough for deaf

PLEASANTON — A breakthrough for deaf and other physically handicapped people who haven't been able to use telephones has been announced by Bell Telephone System.

Jack Deckert, Pacific Telephone manager for Pleasanton, said the innovative program is designed to more adequately meet communication needs of Pleasanton customers and others throughout California.

Gabe Torok, Bell Laboratories designer, said the apparatus worked "like a closed-circuit television with the electronic blackboard providing instant, reliable transmission of voice and graphics. Using the electronic blackboard requires no special transmission facilities, professional training or technical expertise."

The "conversations" would be in the form of typewritten words and sentences displayed either on a small screen similar to that used on electronic calculators or on paper, much like that of newsprinters.

To transmit handwriting and other information such as graphs and drawings, a person at the orginating location writes on the pressure sensitive surface of the electonic blackboard, Torok explained.

The handwriting is then converted into electrical signals and transmitted over phone lines. At the other end of the line, the writing or picture is displayed on a commercial TV set.

Either videotape or paper copies of transmissions can be made by connecting a videotape recorder or commercial hard copy machine to the system.

Communications equipment for handicapped persons who cannot use a conventional telephone by itself includes a hands-free telephone which allows a caller to talk without holding the equipment. Also included are hearing aid adapters to amplify conversations and an artificial larynx which simulates speech for persons whose vocal cords have been damaged or removed.

According to Deckert, the program was developed through cooperative efforts of Pacific Telephone, the California Public Utilities Commission (CPUC) and the State Department of Rehabilitation. The talks were held at the suggestion of Governor Edmund G. Brown, Jr.

Deckert said the company did not make a specific recommendation on prices for the proposed specialized telephone service. He explained the company believes discounted or subsidized rates for certified physically handicapped customers are public policy decisions more properly made by the CPUC.

VIP's cancel meeting

PLEASANTON — The city's VIP's have scrubbed their July meeting, recreation department officials announced this week.

But plans for a July 22 Santa Cruz Seniorama are set.

The next meeting will be at noon, Aug. 8, in the Veterans Memorial Building on Main Street.

Seniors interested in playing bridge or other card games or bingo should call the Pleasanton Senior Service Center, 846-7853.

Home rezone sought

PLEASANTON — Morrison Homes will ask city planning commissioners to rezone a total 14 acres to accommodate its latest housing development.

Commissioners will hear the application at 8 p.m., July 13.

Morrison Homes would build a 78-unit subdivision on 10 acres behind the Alpha Beta Shopping Center between Hopyard Road and Valley Avenue.

The project would lie on both sides of the future Northway Road.

The land currently is zoned for a high density multiple residential district.

The firm also wants the planning commission to consider rezoning 4.1 acres on the northeast corner of Black Avenue and Hopyard Road from an apartment district to a planned unit development.

First phase of the development would include 39 one and two-story "duplexes" which would be sold as 78 individual units. Garages would be both detached and attached, according to the planning department report.

Overall denity during first phase development would be about 7.4 units per acre. Each unit would sell for about $50,000, according to plans.

A negative environmental impact report has been filed.

Public comment will be accepted through July 5.

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I'm in love with a young doctor who's been married before. We've been living together for almost a year and were seriously thinking of marriage. I had no doubts until I saw his reaction to my mother's death several months ago. I loved and admired her and I miss her very much. At the time of her sudden death I felt a deep need for more love, understanding, and comfort. Instead, this was the time this man chose to tell me all my faults. Gradually, I got over my hurt and disappointment in him but last week, a friend's father, who was a patient of his, died, and he again seemed to become unsympathetic. — E.L.

DEAR E.L.: From what you've told me, I'd guess your friend should have taken more courses to help him understand his anxieties about death and dying. If he doesn't come to terms with this shortcoming in himself, he will continue to be insensitive and inadequate as a physician.

A doctor who doesn't understand his own fears has a tendency to blame his patients for their illnesses. If they don't respond to treatment, he may turn his pain and anger against the patient. What such a doctor is really saying, of course, is why have I failed? Because he can't accept imperfections in himself, he turns against those who most need his help.

Studies consistently show that men and women who become doctors and nurses have an abnormally high fear of death. This is probably part of the reason they enter a profession whose goal is to preserve life.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My two nephews are staying with me while their parents are in Europe on an extended business trip. I adore them and am concerned because they're constantly injuring themselves. Their father has the same problem. He is always involved in accidents but I thought his were related to his drinking. The boys are much too young to even think of alcohol — thank heavens. I don't want to cramp their style, but how can I tone them down so they won't break any bones while their parents are away? — R.B.

DEAR R.B.: Accidents are attention - getting as well as self - punishing. Children as well as adults can become accident - prone during periods when they're especially anious, bored, frustrated or lonely. Your nephews are probably feeling a bit insecure about their relationship with their parents and the change in their life.

Any change, certainly one in which both parents are away and a child is living in a different home, is bound to produce stress. Stress can't always be avoided in life but it can be tempered by talking about it. I believe you might help your nephews by encouraging them to disucss their feelings about their parents trip and by reassuring them that all is well.

Children who feel insecure are apt to try too hard to gain approval so they tend to overextend themselves physically. Unfortunately, this often leads to broken bones or sprains. Let them know that they are loved by you and their parents. Remind them that the European trip was necessary and that it won't last forever.

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — I wish you could tell me what to do about my nose. About this time each year I develop hay fever. My nose runs so much I can't keep myself in Kleenex. My eyes water constantly, and I sneeze all day long.

My nose is red and with my watery eyes I am a sight to behold. I use Chlor-Trimetron but as soon as I stop taking it the sneezing and runny nose is right back and I don't like to take medicine.

Is this condition inherited? My mother had the same problem. She had trouble in the fall with ragweed but mine seems to occur in June and July when I'd really like to be out enjoying myself like other people. Should I have shots for this? Just what do the shots do?

Some days I think I'll move to Alaska or any place just to get away from this runny nose.

DEAR READER — Moving my not help you. If you have trouble in June and July it is most likely caused by grass and grass is everywhere. The usual causes of such an allergy are trees — many of them — in the spring, grass in the summer, and ragweed in the fall. In addition a person may be allergic to house dust, animal dander and a frequently overlooked source, the spores of fungus. The latter may be in the air conditioner or areas that are not well ventilated.

Yes, the allergy is inherited. A parent may have hay fever and the child may have hay fever, asthma or hives. The basic gene defect is to form an immune antibody in the body that is slightly different from those normally formed (IgE). It attaches to the cells and then reacts with the offending allergic substance.

In your case the IgE is attached to cells in your nose and when the reaction occurs your cells release histamine. The histamine from your own body is what causes the symptoms. That is why antihistaminics, such as Chlor-Trimeton are useful in treating hay fever and other allergic problems. But to get the best results you need to take the antihistaminic before the offending agent comes in contact with your cells. That means you need to take the Chlor-Trimeton around the clock whether you have symptoms or not. Sometimes you do better with a change in antihistaminics.

If a person has hives or asthma the IgE antibody is attached to different cells but the basic reaction to the offending agent is the same.

Desensitization shots are used to stimulate the body to form other types of antibodies and eventually eliminate the reaction of IgE antibody with the offending agent.

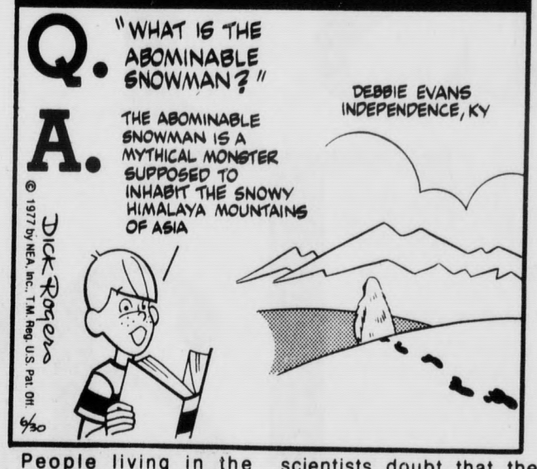
Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER



Q. "WHAT IS THE ABOMINABLE SNOWMAN?"
A. THE ABOMINABLE SNOWMAN IS A MYTHICAL MONSTER SUPPOSED TO INHABIT THE SNOWY HIMALAYA MOUNTAINS OF ASIA

People living in the Himalaya Mountains of Asia tell of a strange creature that supposedly lives on the cold, snowy peaks.

They call the creature the "yeti" (say YEH tih) — the Abominable Snowman!

Their stories tell of a large, shaggy, half-human beast. It prowls the mountains by night, leaving huge tracks in the snow. It is a fearsome creature with a mournful cry and an evil odor.

No one has ever seen an Abominable Snowman, or yeti, dead or alive. But many people have seen large, strange footprints in the snow of the Himalayas.

Some say these are the yeti's footprints. But most scientists doubt that the snowman really exists and that the tracks were made by bears and other animals that walked across the snow.

They found that such tracks would often grow in size as the sun melted the snow around them, forming the monsterous "footprints" of the Abominable Snowman.

If anyone believes that the female of the species is not deadlier than the male, just look what Nicola Gardiner, a 24-year-old English lady, did to her opponents with today's hand.

She started proceedings with a preemptive three-club bid. Then, when the opponents reached four spades, she stuck in a double.

Bob Rowlands, her partner, realized that it couldn't be a normal business double. It had to be a lead directing bid. It wasn't hard for him to figure out what was in her mind. He opened the deuce of his six-card heart suit.

Nicola ruffed and returned a club to South's ace. A trump was led, but Bob went right up with his ace and led a second heart for a second ruff and the third defensive trick.

Later on, Nicola set the hand when she scored the fourth trick with her king of diamonds.

Can't say we recommend this as a steady diet, but the game was match-point duplicate and Bob and Nicola scored a top of tops.

Demand Builds For Merit Taste Technology.

High and low tar smokers converted as news of 'Enriched Flavor'™ tobacco spreads.

There is a way to pack flavor—extra flavor—into a low tar cigarette.

MERIT proved it.

By cracking cigarette smoke down into separate elements, researchers were able to isolate certain "flavor-rich" ingredients that deliver taste way out of proportion to tar.

The result was 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco. Tobacco that delivers the kind of taste smokers can switch to. And stick with.

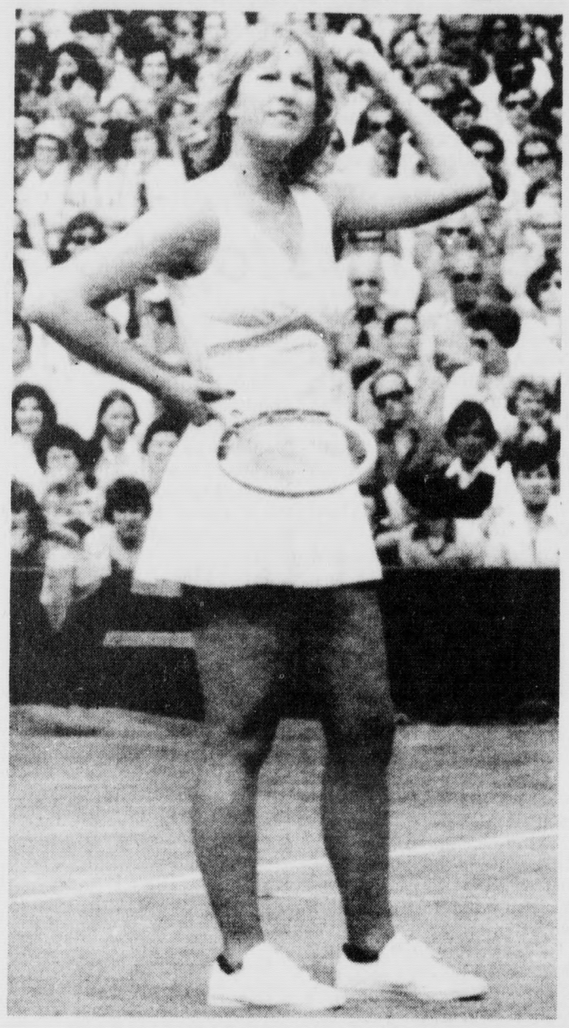
Wade stuns Evert at Wimbledon



Chris Evert is puzzled at referee's call.

WIMBLEDON, England — Virginia Wade, the English vicar's daughter, stunned reigning champion Chris Evert 6-2, 4-6, 6-1 Wednesday and reached the women's singles finals of the Wimbledon Tennis Championships after 14 years of trying.

Miss Wade, 31, will play for the title Friday against Betty Stove, 32, of The Netherlands with Queen Elizabeth II scheduled to be among the spectators.

The tall, hard-hitting Dutch player defeated Sue Barker of Britain 6-4, 2-6, 6-4.

Miss Evert, a heavy favorite to retain her crown, was hustled out of her stride and fell below her usual form.

"I could not reach deep inside of me and pull out what I needed to win the match," Chris said.

The men take the center court again Thursday for their semifinals. Teen-aged John McEnroe, unheralded and unseeded, meets No. 1 seed Jimmy Connors and Vitas Gerulaitis plays defending champion Bjorn Borg.

The 15,000 spectators around the center court on Wednesday roared for Virginia and saw a new player. The jittery woman who has been blowing her Wimbledon chances year after year was composed, confident and consistent.

"I have never played so well," she said — and gave some of the credit to playing for the New York Apples of the World Team Tennis league.

"Team tennis is fantastic," Miss Wade said, "especially from a physical point of view. It makes you work hard, and it makes you concentrate on one point at a time.

"That kind of experience means a lot when you come to a tournament like Wimbledon."

The Wade-Evert match was one of the best women's duels seen on the center court for years — with long rallies and game after game going to deuce.

For once, Chris came off second best in the long baseline-to-baseline exchanges. She lost vital points by forehand errors.

Virginia won the first four games. And Chris never got her game going in the opening set. In the second, however, she scored with some great backhands. When she leveled the match at one-set all, it appeared that it would be an Evert victory.

In the final set, though, the English woman took command again after a remarkable incident in the first game.

Serving at advantage point, Virginia dropped a short one and Chris sprinted forward and scooped the ball all over the net. Virginia claimed it had bounced twice, but the umpire at first gave Chris the point.

Virginia sank to her knees in despair, her head in her hands. Then Chris walked forward.

"I thought it was a double bounce, but it's your decision," she told the umpire.

He changed his mind and gave the point — and the game — to Miss Wade. It marked the beginning of a final winning surge which left Miss Evert out in the cold.

Afterwards, Chris said, "I was 60 per cent sure it was not up. Virginia was making a big deal of it, and I said, 'Let's forget it and get on with the match.'"

As the crowd cheered louder for every winning point, Virginia got better and better. In the sixth game she performed acrobatics to capture Chris's service for the last time, leaping to retrieve two impossible looking shots and then passing her opponent with a flashing cross-court forehand.

The match had a strange ending. Miss Evert hit a forehand which appeared to land over her opponent's baseline, but the linesman did not call and Miss Wade hit it back.

Chris already was running forward to shake hands.

"Whether it was called or not, my shot was out," she said later.

But the umpire said he would have given the point to Chris, since there was no call.

Perry plummets A's, 4-0

Times SPORTS

Dave Weber, Editor

OAKLAND — His thick moustache gets grayer daily. His stomach sags over his belt and even his once-victorious spitball is seldom questioned.

In fact, Gaylord Perry looks more like a stage coach driver than a major league baseball pitcher.

But the ex-Giant, ex-Indian, now-Texas Ranger found an anecdote to his aging problems last night in the inept Oakland A's.

Possessor of a horrendous 3.98 earned run average and 6-6 record entering the game, Perry blanked the fluttering A's, 4-0, in the first game of a twi-night doubleheader.

The second game score was unavailable at press-time.

Perry allowed six hits, struck out four and walked two in winning his 238th game of his career.

Perry said he would be thrilled finishing the season with 250 career wins.

As for the coveted 300 mark, he insists it's out of the question.

"They won't pay me that long," he explained, smiling.

Perry's contract runs through next year but he said he'll pitch "as long as I can get 'em out," which would probably be forever if he faces the A's regularly.

Mike Norris born when Perry was pitching varsity high school ball, absorbed another tough loss. The 22-year-old San Franciscan lost his last start against Kansas City after allowing three runs in seven innings. Before that, he dropped a 2-1 decision to Chicago on two home runs.

The home run bug struck Norris last night as Juan Beniquez opened the second inning with his sixth round-tripper this season.

Beniquez got into the scoring act later on when his double-play ball scored Willie Horton from third to give Texas a 3-0 lead in the fourth.

In the seventh, Beniquez singled, stole second and scored on a Bump Wills single to conclude the scoring.

Beniquez was dropped from third to sixth in the lineup, but said it had no consequence on his fine performance. "No, it didn't make me mad," the Puerto-Rican said of the switch. "As long as they put me in there, I'm happy."

Marty Perez and Mitchell Page were the only A's who solved the Perry mystery. Both singled twice.

Wild pitch aids Reds 5-4 win

CINCINNATI — Ken Griffey scored from third on a wild pitch by John Curtis in the 11th inning, giving the Cincinnati Reds a 5-4 victory over the San Francisco Giants Wednesday night.

The Reds loaded the bases with none out against Curtis as Pete Rose walked, Griffey singled, and Joe Morgan walked. Rose tried to score when Curtis' low pitch got away from catcher Mike Sadek, but was nailed at home. On the next pitch to Dan Driessen, Curtis threw high past Sadek, allowing Griffey to score on a close play.

Dale Murray, who came on in the 11th, notched his fourth victory against two losses. Curtis, 1-3, took the loss.

Tom Seaver, trying for his first game in Cincinnati since joining the Reds two weeks ago, was pulled for a pinch-hitter after the Giants tied it at 4-4 in the eighth. He gave up eight hits and four earned runs, while striking out eight.

Mitchell back on merry-go-round

Oakland A's pitcher Paul Mitchell was practically guaranteed Tuesday that he'll be pitching through the middle innings of his next appearance after failing to survive the third frame in his two starts since being recalled from the minors.

The latest decision by the Oakland coaching staff, however, was hardly a vote of extreme confidence in the Pleasanton resident. He's been demoted to the bullpen.

Mitchell, apparently trying to drown his sorrows, emerged from a 15-minute shower following the A's 6-5 win over Texas Tuesday night.

"Yeah, I heard," he said sourly about the recent move.

The Worcester, Massachusetts-raised righthander said he wasn't surprised, especially after what puppeteer owner Charlie O. Finley has already done to him this season.

Mitchell was counted on to be a mainstay on this year's staff after a 9-7 record last summer. But after three ineffective spring training starts, he was sent down the bay to San Jose, the A's Triple A minor league affiliate.

Things went from bad to worse. Expecting to be called up after a few starts, Mitchell was instead dumped further down the baseball chain after compiling a 2-4 mark with San Jose.

Next stop: Chattanooga, where the 6-foot easterner expressed his desire in an earlier interview with The Times that he wanted out of Finley's strangle hold.

But the June 15 trading deadline expired, and it appeared Mitchell was imprisoned in Chattanooga for the rest of his playing days.

When Dock Ellis was sold to Texas, Mitchell was unexpectedly recalled by the parent club.

In his initial start last Tuesday, he lasted only 2.2 innings against Milwaukee, giving up five hits, three walks and three runs.

The A's eventually lost, 12-1.

"I didn't expect them to pull me," he said dejectly. "I gave up only one run."

Two Brewers that occupied a base when Mitchell departed later scored, thus adding to his ERA.

In Mitchell's recent disaster Monday night, Claudell Washington's third inning two-run homer in the second sent him to the dugout.

"One bad pitch . . . and I'm out," he said, obviously hinting manager Bobby Winkles hasn't given him a full-fledged chance.

"I'm 26 years old and have been in the major leagues three years," he went on to say. "And I feel like a rookie."

It will be difficult for the light skinned blond to regain his starting job: it's been eliminated.

Previously employing a five-man rotation, the A's will go with the customary four.

"We'll use Mike Norris, (Rick) Langford, (Vida) Blue and Doc Medich," pitching coach Lee Stange said. "Paul will be used as a long relief man."

As for the future of Mitchell? Even he has no idea who will be paying his salary next season.

"I don't know if I'll be back," he said. "With Charlie you take things a day at a time. You know what I mean?"

Barner spells bad news for CC

RICHMOND — Ho-hum. Another average basketball night for Phil Barner. Which, in turn, means another loss for Barner's opponents.

Fremont High graguate Barner's linescore read 25 points, four rebounds, five assists and five steals in Tuesday night's Alameda-Contra Costa County High School All-star game played at the Richmond Auditorium. The final tally saw Alameda best CC by an 81-78 count. A rematch of the two teams is set for tonight at 8 p.m. in the Hayward State gym.

Barner's stats are made even more impressive by the facts that when the game began he was not in the lineup and, after he did enter the contest, he picked up three quick fouls and was forced to the sidelines for the final 10 minutes of the opening half.

The game began with each team playing cautious basketball, seemingly nervous in the face of initial all-star action for many of the players. The lead changed hands six times in the early going before Alameda put together a 9-0 scoring spurt to jump out to an 18-12 advantage.

Barner started the string with a 15-foot jumper off a pass from Donald Seals of Castlemont High School. Seals then turned on his own offense, slam dunking with Barner returning the assist favor after stealing an errant Contra Costa pass.

Seals followed that with a jumper from the top of the key and 17 seconds later Dave Nahirny from Washington High scored on a driving lay-up. One of two free throws by Nahirny ended the Alameda run and and touched off the fireworks of Contra Costa's high scorer on the night, Bart Bowers of Kennedy High School.

Bowers scored six of his team high 19 points in the first half after entering the game with about 11 minutes to play.

In the second half, Bowers became a driving force behind the Contra Costa attack which kept the game extremely close to the final buzzer.

Ahead just 39-38 at intermission, Alameda came out running and quickly tossed in four hoops to extend the lead to 47-38 and force CC coach Greg Cook to call a time out to let his troops collect themselves.

"I didn't tell them anything special in that time out," related Cook. "They knew what the job was and I simply reminded them that there was plenty of time left and to relax and take it easy," he continued.

Contra Costa's 5-6 guard Ken Carter directed the comeback with his outstanding quickness and shooting. Carter answered the Alameda stretch with a bucket and a pair of free throws and Layne Olson of Ygnacio Valley High fired in an 18 footer to cut the Alameda lead to 47-44 and set up the stretch run which featured good shooting by both teams, a number of fast breaks, some sloppy passing and super defense toward the end by Alameda.

Contra Costa took its final lead with 6:17 to play when Northgate High's Jim Swan dropped in a pair of free throws after being fouled by Ray Murrey of St. Mary's. Barner erased that shortlived CC pad with two straight hoops and Seals put Alameda up by five points with a spectacular flying hook shot with just over five minutes to play.

The closest Contra Costa got after that was 80-78 with

Warriors dig deep for rookies

SAN JOSE — Do Coppin State, Norfolk State, Oklahoma State, Houston-Baptist, East Texas State, Alabama - Huntsville, Kentucky State and Mercer sounds like a trek through southern America by comedian Dick Gregory, visiting Southern colleges?

Nope, it's just a few of the schools that have members invited to the 1977 edition of the Golden State Warriors Rookie and free agent Training camp.

"If we can just get a couple of guys out of this bunch, we will be more than happy," commented Head Coach Al Attles from San Jose City College, site of the start of this years edition of th Golden State Warriors campaign.

Considering that the Warriors are minus Ricky Green and Wesley Cox, both of their first round draft picks, and seeing how second round pick Ricky Love didn't arrive until Wednesday, in theory the coach Attles has a fine point but looking further into the members of the camp the Warriors may have quiet a catch.

Carl Bird a graduate of Cal-Berkeley two seasons ago averaged 47 points a game in the Phillipines a season ago. The 6-7 forward has faired well in the shooting and running drills and performed admirably in the scrimmages, also in attendance are John Hummer a six year vetern of the NBA and for the last season a wanderer.

Hummer a first round pick out of Princeton, spent his first season averaging 11 points a game and grabbing 711 rebounds for the Buffalo Braves before his career went into a tailspin which has never been ended.

"I like to travel, last season I didn"t play, I just drove around the country, spent alot of my time just thinking about the game. I finally decided that wherever I went to I was going to have to show them that I wanted to play," Hummer emphasized the "I" and "they" parts of his statement and went on to say, "I have to be aggresive about the way I look to anyteam I want to play for heck, I'm getting old and I knew the Warriors were a fine organization and they would give me a fair chance. That's why I am here because I want to play," ended the veteran a collegiate mate of Geoff Petrie, one of the NBA's premier shooters.

The Warriors also have in camp Marlon Redmond, described by many scouts as one of the finest shooters in the country a year ago while playing for the University of San Francisco, ranked number one in the country before running into the "runnin' rebels" of Nevada Las Vegas.

Redmond averaged 17.5 his senior season hitting .502 from the floor and capturing West Coast Athletic League post season honors for the third consecutive season.

Roy Smith a 6-8 center in college out of Kentucky State the small college division of the NCAA's answer to UCLA, with seven consectuvie 20 win seasons and three national titles in the last five years. Smith played on a very fine front line at Kentucky State and battled in the NCAA small college championship tournament with Ray Epps of Norfolk State also a member of the Warrior camp. Smtih at 6-8 was the Warriors fourth round pick and Epps at 6-6 the fifth round selection.

Also in camp are Ray Murry of Cal-Berkeley, Vic Baker of U.O.P at Stockton, Ken Harris of Drake and an unknown pick in the eighth round Ricky Marsh, whose ball handling and quickness in the early part of the week brought stars to the eys of many observers watching the youngster form Manhattan in the stands.

Scrimmages, open to the public, begin at 5:30 and run till 7:30, for the remainder of the week, at San Jose City College.

Also in attendance was an older vetern hopefull of a glance from one of the coaches and perhaps a chance at making the big squad... Rick Barry, wearing a white golfers cap and protruding just a bit at the waist ... a bit out of was all that was observed.

If the Warriors can get a Charles Johnson, Ron Boone, Henry Bibby, James Silas or Slick Watts out of the camp they will be finding the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow, the aforementioned all all entered the NBA as free agent walk ons or draft picks later than the fourth round.

Henosee nips 'Fresno' field

Enrique Munoz made Henosee's return to reasonable competition a successful one, bringing the Neal Silva-trained gelding to the front at the sixteenth pole to win the Fresno Purse before a crowd of7911 yesterday afternoon at the Alameda County Fairgrounds.

Henosee had raced with allowance horses at Golden Gate Fields and was beaten badly, so the morning line favored Eldon Hall's Happy Idea and Run For Nathan with Bill Mahorney in the saddle.

Hill Shot and Brigadeer led the field of 10 three-year olds into the stretch, but faded as Henosee came on in the middle of the track to pay $13.40 for his 1:11 1/5 victory.

Local rider Tommy Burkes rode Craig's Lad and missed a chance to win his second feature race in as many days when the gelding, trained by R.L. Martin, broke badly, forcing Burkes to try the extreme outside of the field in the stretch after being blocked inside for most of the six furlongs.

In the eighth race, the largest betting pay-off of the young season occured when Dr. Willis, owned and trained by no less than three of the Willis' clan, won and 19-1 shot Silver Pin ran second to return $583.50 on each five dollar exacta ticket sold.

The winning combination was 6-5.

In another noteworthy occurance, apprentice jockey Richard Galarsa was again involved in a disqualification. Tuesday, he had been the benificiary, yesterday, Galarsa was at fault.

Aboard 7-2 shot Battle Mountin, Galarsa led in the stretch, but had little hope of beating Debbie Doo, with James Riley up, to the wire. Litle hope, that is, until he veered toward the middle of the track and blocked Debbie Doo's path.

That got him to the winner's circle, but didn't help much with the purse as the stewards ruled in favor of Riley's mount.

Yesterday's handle was the largest of the three days of racing thus far at $898,671, but it was still far short of the record $1.4 million bet on getaway day in 1975. That mark will probably not last past Monday's holiday crowd or this season's final card.

Today, Kentucky-bred Winter Sleet will contest the C.B. Hixon-trained entry of Soft Focus and Sharna L in the $8500 Distaff Purse. Winter Sleet will carry 118 pounds, most of jockey Mahorney.

The four-year old daughter of Gallent Romeo won a pair of allowance tests at Golden Gate Fields before being beaten by a nose in the Wiggins Stakes at Vallejo. Soft Focus bids for her third consecutive win while Draft One and Lexi Jane could also be factors in the nine horse field.

Meanwhile, 11 sophomore runners were nominated for the $12,500 added Sam Whiting Memorial Stakes to be contested Saturday. Made eligible were Grey Moon Runner, Diego, Vested Gold, Capt. Phil, Mr. Charm, Gypsy Leader, Determined Wind, Lynns Beau Wind, OJ'S Gold, Swaby and Red Debonair.

Pleasanton booters impress at Dallas invite

DALLAS — Pleasaton United's Under-10 and Under-12 girls-soccer teams each won first place in the North Texas Soccer Association Invitational Soccer Tournament here last weekend.

The Under-12 team defeated the Oak Cliff Texas Cowgirls 4-0.

The Cowgirls were undefeated (34-0) over a two-year span.

United's Under-10 squad took a 3-1 win over the Garland Hurricanes in the finals.

Kim Rose scored twice to spark the Under-12 team past Oak Cliff. Debbie Martin and Colleen Prickett added the other Under-12 goals.

Traci Hirst had two assists for the winners. Kristin Ferguson had a corner kick.

Tracy Lucia and Laycie Mohatt were defensive standouts. Kelly Crow and goalie Carlene Cassidy were awarded the championship game balls.

Oak Cliff had only one shot on goal as the United fullbacks and halfbacks cleared the ball over the Texas players to breakaway forwards.

United blasted the Dallas Horspurs 8-1 in the second round.

Rose and Prickett each had two goals for the winners. Sue Mittlebusher, Hirst, Ferguson and Sara Harris each added one.

Pat Demaranville and Jesse Brennan were defensive standouts.

United took a 4-0 decision over the East Dallas Lady Bugs in the semi-finals.

Kelly Crow had a 25-yard penalty kick for the first goal. Prickett, Sue Mittlebusher and Amy Kranesh each added a goal.

Carlene Cassidy was outstanding at goalie. Michelle Nieto and Laurie Meyers each played well defensively.

United topped the Apaches 4-1 in the opening round.

Hirst had two goals, Kaycie Mohatt one and Ferguson one.

Crow and Debbie Martin were defensive standouts.

Despite playing with a total squad of just 12 athletes Pleasanton United's Under-10 team took solid wins for the title.

Cheryl Weathers, Leslie Hoffman and Vanessa Parks each scored goals for United.

Janelle Cobb stood out on defense.

Tanya Bilentnikoff scored all the goals as United took a thrilling 3-2 victory over the Irving Eagles in the second round. Denise Scaggs at goalie and Robin Risso were defensive standouts.

United had a bye in the first round.

In action involving other valley teams the Pleasanton Knights' under-14 squad was eliminated in the semi-finals and the San Ramon Superiors took second in the Under-19 division.

The Knights won their opening round contest over the Dallas Oak Cliff Stars, 3-1.

Pam Miller scored twice for the winners while Jina Dailey tallied the other goal.

In the second contest the Knights rolled over the Ladybugs 6-1. Pleasanton jumped off to a 5-0 lead before the Dallas team could score.

Sheri Heinbaugh scored four times for the winners while Dailey and Diane Martin also scored.

The tired Knights, playing in near-100 degree weather, fell to the Oak Cliff Rockets Gold, 2-1 in sudden-death in the semi-finals.

Pleasanton took a 1-0 lead with 15 minutes to play in the match when Miller booted the ball to Julie Pappas who then fired the ball into the nets.

Oak Cliff tied the score on a questionable call when the official changed an indirect kick into a direct kick which allowed Oak Cliffs score to stand.

In the overtime quarter the teams split on penalty kicks, before Oak Cliff won in sudden death.

Pleasanton coach Harry Miller praised the efforts of fullbacks Karrie Kent, Lori Estes and Karrie Allen. Pappas, Karen Broderick, goalie Konnie Hobbs and Marcy Amseaugj also stood out for the Knights.

The Knights had four of their starters missing for the tournament.

Charlie Brown tops Hayward nine

Charlie Brown also lost three games over the weekend to the Pleasant Hill Phillies.

The two teams played a doubleheader Saturday and Pleasant Hill won by 4-1 and 3-1 margins.

In the first contest Jeff Benton went the distance for Charlie Brown, giving up 10 hits. Charlie Brown's only run was scored in the seventh inning when Mike Rohrer singled in Don Farrell who had previously singled.

In Saturday's second game Steve Cox was the pitcher for Charlie Broen and allowed seven hits.

However, a bad third inning saw Pleasant Hill scorethree times on a walk, triple and a home run. That cinched the game for the Phillies.

Bob Boyle led the Charlie Brown attack with a single and triple in three trips to the plate. He also made a fine running catch in left field. Boyle drove in Charlie Brown's only run with his triple.

The third game was played Monday with Pleasant Hill taking a 3-2 decision.

Mike Krikorian pitched for the losers and gave up nine hits.

Pleasant Hill scored their three runs on a home run in the first inning by Sam Rothschild, three singles a and a triple and a sacrifice fly.

Tom Favero had two hits and catcher Daryl Stone added a double for Charlie Brown.

Boyle, John Bachleda and Favero each made outstanding catches in the outfield for the losers.

Pleasant Hill's team was sponsored by the Philadelphia Phillies.

Charlie Brown Realtors defeated Accurate Refrigeration of Hayward, 8-6 Tuesday night at Sunset High School in Hayward in Senior Babe Ruth action.

John Bachleda went the distance for the winners and picked up the victory.

Bachleda also had two hits and scored twice. Steve Cox scored two runs.

Gary Basso went one-for-two and scored a run.

Mike Krikorian stole his first base of the season for Charlie Brown.

Littleleagues plan bash

It should be a wild time when the coaches of Pleasanton National and Pleasanton American Little Leagues battle it out Monday at the Pleasanton National Senior Field in the Youth Sports Park in Pleasanton.

Pleasanton National will be led by Jack Parker and Pleasanton American's stars are "Banana Nose" Souza and Boozie Hellum.

The game starts at 12:15. All proceeds will go to both little leagues.

Snowden's 3 HR's give Yanks title

Sparky Snowden clubbed three straight home runs to spark the Estate Realtors Yankees to an 11-0 win overThe Bread Box Angels and cinch the Pleasanton American Major Division Little League crown.

Snowden's three staight homers were a league record. He now has seven homers for the season.

Richie Rollins added his fifth homer of the season and two RBI's. Paul Hellum had tw hits and two RBI's for the victors.

Graham Todd had two hits and Mike Healey one for the Angels.

Jeff Stobaugh was the winning pitcher and Chris Damoulos took the defeat.

Steve Hickey relieved Stobaugh in the second inning with the bases loaded and no outs. He got the side out with no runs on two pitches, a home-to-first base double play and a ground out.

The winners had 10 hits and the Angels picked up eight.

Mays heads northward

Recent Dublin High School graduate Sean Mays has accepted a two-year baseball scholarship to Southern Idaho Junior College.

Mays, who was drafted by the New York Mets as a shortstop in the recent major league draft, plans to concentrate on his education first.

"The Met scout lives in that area and he said he'd keep an eye on me," the ex-Gael said. "But right now I'm concentrating on college and the baseball program up there.

"They have a very good program there," he went on. "They've been to the nationals (junior college) for three years and they've sent a lot of players on to four-year colleges." Junior colleges in California cannot offer athletic scholarships but many outside of the state do.

Mays batted .295 in East Bay Athletic League action and was one of the better defensive shortstops in the loop. He also played quarterback on the football team and was a member of the basketball squad.

The government of China, at all levels, from the top to the very bottom, is tightly controlled by the Communist Party of China.

That party has a membership, we are told, of 30 million people. When you realize that the present population of China, according to the best U.S. figures obtainable, is now between 930 million and 950 million, you become aware that only three out of 100 citizens of China are members of the Communist Party.

Membership is carefully selected and not all people who apply are admitted. On our tour, we had seven persons in the Chinese national government who accompanied us throughout the trip. Of these seven, five were party members. The other two were not.

Party discipline is apparently very strict. Members appear to be very dedicated and accept, mouth and promote the party line at every conceivable opportunity.

All events are analyzed and portrayed from the standpoint of the Communist Party and its philosophy. The result is some interpretations of events which seem rather strange to us.

The government structure of the People's Republic of China is well known and is set forth in a diagram accompanying this column. At the top is the People's Congress.

The National People's Congress is the governing body, and its members elect the State Council, headed by the Party Chairman (presently Hau Kuo - feng).

The State Council acts as the active operating unit of the government when the Congress is not meeting in its annual session. The State Council decides every issue on behalf of the National People's Congress and the People's Republic of China.

Under the State Council are commissions and ministries. The ministries include foreign affairs, education, defense, finance and foreign trade. The commissions include the New China News Agency, the State Planning Commission, the State Capital Construction Commission and the Physical Culture and Sports Commission.

Under the ministries are quite a number of bureaus including public security, economic relations with foreign countries, agriculture, and forestry, metallurgical industry, machine building, coal industry, petroleum and chemical, water conservancy and power, light industry, railways, communications, post and tele - communications, commerce, culture and public health.

The premier and the vice premiers are not only party members but also hold top posts in the party. These men include chairman of the National Party Congress, chairman and vice chairmen of the Central Committee, the Politburo, provincial level Congress leaders, and provincial level standing committees, as well as heads of such general committees as military affairs, international liaison department, foreign intelligence, propaganda, social affairs, women's work and the young communist league.

This party structure extends downward into the provinces and also into every local organization and unit of life.

For example, the Revolutionary Committee of a particular factory runs the factory. The person in charge of production is under the chairman and vice chairman of the Revolutionary Committee of that factory.

Likewise, the Revolutionary Committee of a particular commune runs the commune, and the person or persons actively guiding the affairs of the commune work under the chairman and vice chairman of the Revolutionary Committee of that particular commune.

There are 21 provinces of China and three municipalities which operate under direct authority from the Central Government. These municipalities are Peking, Tientsin and Shanghai.

Each province elects as members of the National People's Congress, the highest organ of power in China, one deputy for each 800,000 persons, with a provision that there shall not be less than three deputies from any province. This condition is intended to give more representation to the western provinces which are much more sparsely settled than the eastern provinces.

The cities of Peking, Tientsin and Shanghai elect one deputy to the National People's Congress for every 100,000 persons. The national minorities, of which there are many in China, elect 150 deputies. The armed forces elect 60 deputies and the Overseas Chinese 30 deputies.

The term for election is four years and the Congress meets once a year. The Standing Committee appointed by the Congress is the permanent body which acts for the Congress between sessions.

The chief of state of China is the chairman of the People's Republic of China. He is elected by the National People's Congress and serves a term of four years.

The State Council is the highest administrative organ. The prime minister is elected by the National People's Congress and all other members are appointed by the chairman.

The State Council, commonly known as the Politburo, may vary in numbers from time to time. The average number of members is 20.

The chief political party is, of course, the Chinese Communist Party which was founded in May, 1920, in Shanghai. The Communist Party overthrew the Chiang Kai Shek regime in September, 1949, and the People's Republic of China was proclaimed that month, starting to function on Oct. 1, 1949.

Against this is the evidence that the "Gang of Four" headed by Mao Tse Tung's widow, Chiang Ch-ing, tried to seize control of the entire government following the death of Mao in August, 1976.

At that time, her associates included two of the five top members of the Standing Committee. The order of rank of these two members, following Mao's death, was second and fourth among the five.

U.S. citizens must live with anti-American diatribes

The top one of these was Wang Hung - Wen, who was vice chairman of the Chinese Communist Party and vice chairman of the Military Commission. He was also secretary of the Shanghai Communist Party's Central Committee and vice chairman of the Shanghai Municipal Revolutionary Committee.

The other member of the Standing Committee aligned with Mao's widow was Chang Ch'un - Ch'iao who was also a vice premier of the State Council, a director of the People's Liberation Army, the first secretary of the Shanghai Communist Party and the chairman of the Shanghai Municipal Revolutionary Committee.

The third highly placed person aligned with Mao's widow was Yao Wen - Yuan, who was the second secretary of the Chinese Communist Party and vice chairman of the Chinese Municipal Revolutionary Committee.

From these descriptions, you would assume, quite correctly, that the power base of the Gang of Four was in Shanghai, the largest city in the world and the dominating factor in Kiangsu province.

Shanghai has a population, including the suburbs, of over 10 million people and the province has a population, including Shanghai, of about 80 million people, third largest in China.

Everywhere you go in China, including inside the homes of peasants and workers, you find large pictures of "Great Chairman Mao" and "Wise Chairman Hua." These enlarged colored photographs appear on the face of major public buildings and other buildings in every city.

Oct. 1, 1949 is generally given as the Day of Liberation. Everything in China since that date refers to the time "since liberation." All figures, all statistics, all events, are listed as before or after liberation.

The emphasis is on "after liberation," and the events before liberation are being downgraded to a considerable extent.

One gets the impression in China that the real life in China, and the real future of China, began in October, 1949, and that what took place before was merely a recital of the injustices done to the Chinese people by their own emperors, by invaders and conquerors and by white men from the western imperial powers.

Any U.S. citizen visiting China can expect to hear time and again that he is from an imperalist power, a capitalistic nation, which mistreats the worker, the peasant (agricultural worker) and the average citizen.

This cacophony of diatribes will irritate the U.S. citizen until he finally realizes that it is something mouthed by everyone without being directed against him or her personally. When one reaches this conclusion, the trip through China becomes less irritating and more bearable.

Every citizen over 18 years of age is eligible to vote and is expected to vote. We were not told what pressure, if any, is brought to bear to require such voting, but the indications would seem to be that there is a substantial amount of pressure toward this end.

Whether or not China is governed primarily by the chairman of the Communist Party, who also serves as premier, or by a committee of the State Council (the highest body under the National People's Congress) is a matter for considerable discussion and some difference of opinion.

All pronouncements are made in the name of the chairman of the Party, and this is cited as evidence that the chairman has fairly unlimited powers.

It is interesting to note that the large public squares in practically every city, in addition to the large life size photographs of the faces of Chairman Mao and Chairman Hua, have equally large photographs of four other persons — Marx, Engels, Lenin and Stalin. These four represent the hard liners espousing the Marxist - Leninist philosophy of government and the people's revolutionary movement.

In every railroad station, every airport, and in many squares you find huge posters referring to the People's Revolutionary Movement of the World. Many quote Marx, Lenin and Mao.

The theme is always that the workers should unite and overcome the imperalists. This is the theme that is constantly stated in the newspapers of China and over the loud - speakers which dot the Chinese cities, towns and settled parts of the countryside.

In view of this tight control of the people by the Communist Party under the Chairman, it is difficult for any of us to understand how Mao's wife and her group of three major colleagues could acquire so much influence throughout China.

They did it because of Mao's reluctance to clamp down upon their activities. They controlled all of the communications media of China and thus were able to expound daily their philosophies of government which differed somewhat from those of Mao. By doing so, they built up a substantial sphere of influence that was difficult to overthrow after Mao died.

Mao repeatedly said the their philosophy was wrong and would be dealt with either that year or the next year or the next. He also repeatedly said that political revisionists should not be treated as criminals, but rather as people who needed to be re - educated.

This very generous attitude on Mao's part permitted the Gang of Four to function and survive until such time as Mao was no longer alive.

Mao's sucessor, Chairman Hua, moved quickly to suppress the Gang of Four by placing all of them in house arrest and by mounting a tremendous hourly campaign (which is still going on full strength) to criticize and outlaw these "revisionists ideas."

Is the Chinese Communist Party in tight control of China and its people?

The answer is a resounding yes. That control is tight, absolute and permits no deviation whatsoever.

For the foreseeable future, the Communist Party of China is safely entrenched in complete control.

It's matter of voting rights

PLEASANTON — CARD spokesman Ray Kidder failed to draw fire from the city council this week when he presented a "clarification" of his group's referendum petition.

He drew a nondescript no comment from Mayor Robert Philcox, who said only that petition signatures are being verified by the city clerk's office.

According to Kidder, the issue is not the pipeline project per se, but the "citizen's right to vote."

"The fact that the Pleasanton electorate favored the Boehmer Summit Pipeline Project last November is therefore irrelevant to the issue of this referendum," he adds.

City council last month invoked a provision of the state bonding law to override Valley voters' rejection of the pipeline issue.

CARD followed with a whirlwind, 10-day referendum campaign that culminated when leaders laid a 2,171 - signature petition on the city's steps.

Of the three Valley communities, only Pleasanton voters approved the pipeline.

Kidder says voters now favor a new ballot rather than the city's override.

"It should be clearly understood that the issue addressed by the CARD referendum is the (Valley) citizen's right to vote, not the issue of his support or non-support of any specific pipeline project," concludes CARD.

Kidder and CARD are calling on the city council to "put an end to your opposition to Valley voters," and "put the issue on the ballot with the least possible delay."

The city has 30 days to verify the petition.

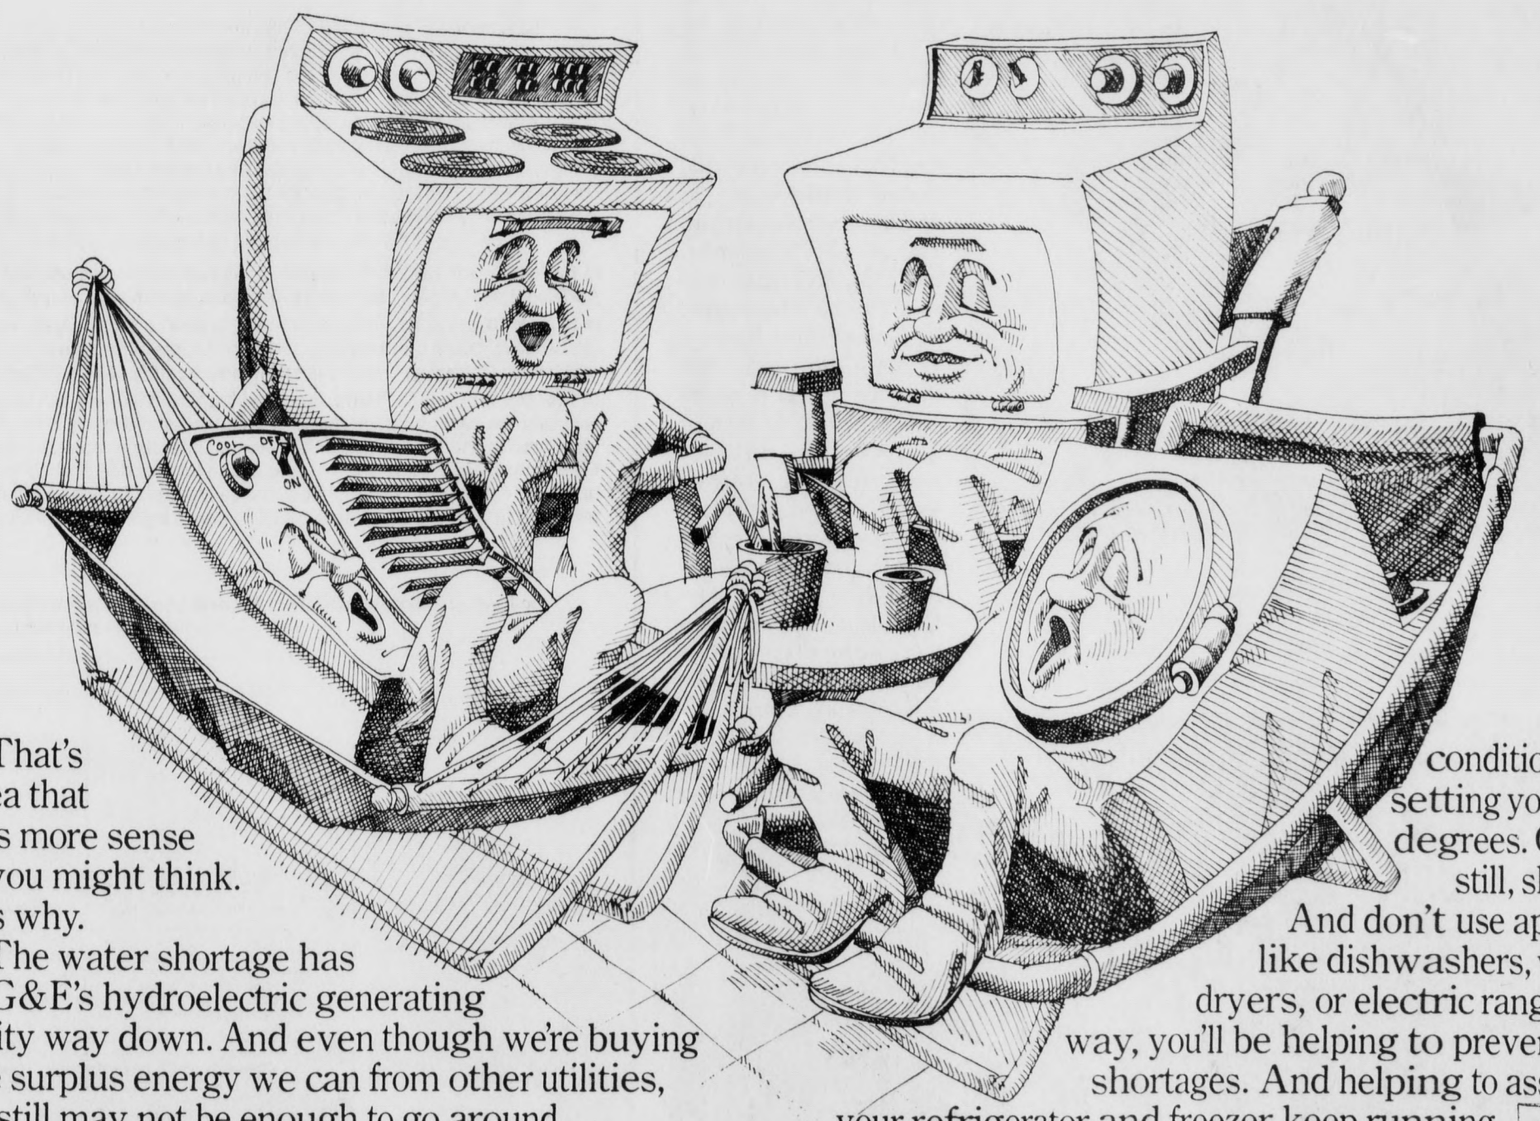
After that, it can rule the referendum legally groundless, put the issue before voters, or rescind its bond sales endorsement.

City attorney Ken Scheidig has advised council members that their May resolution was an "administrative" change not a "legislative" one, and hence is not subject to the referendum.

BORN LOSER

If you think things sometimes go wrong for you, you'll feel better after laughing at "The Born Loser" each morning in The Times comics.

THIS SUMMER, WHY NOT LET YOUR ELECTRIC APPLIANCES TAKE HOT AFTERNOONS OFF?



That's an idea that makes more sense than you might think. Here's why.

The water shortage has cut PG&E's hydroelectric generating capacity way down. And even though we're buying all the surplus energy we can from other utilities, there still may not be enough to go around.

The worst time is during hot summer afternoons, when the use of electricity is greatest. And the chances of power shortages are greatest.

But there's something you can do about it. During those hot summer afternoons, cut down on your use of electricity. As much as possible. Especially on air conditioners. Try setting yours at 82 degrees. Or better still, shut it off. And don't use appliances like dishwashers, washers, dryers, or electric ranges. That way, you'll be helping to prevent power shortages. And helping to assure that your refrigerator and freezer keep running.

If you'd like a lot of suggestions on saving energy...and money, we've prepared a booklet called, "How To Keep Your Summer PG&E Bills Under Control." Get a copy at your local PG&E office. It's free.

SAVING ENERGY IS MORE IMPORTANT THAN EVER.

NOTICE TO TELEPHONE CUSTOMERS

We are planning changes in the rates for calls to Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands, and changes in the rates for some mainland interstate calls.

The American Telephone and Telegraph Company has filed a new schedule of rates with the Federal Communications Commission which decreases the charges for all dial-direct calls to Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands, and increases charges for some Long Distance calls made interstate in the continental U.S.

The Company has asked that the new rate schedule for U.S. offshore points become effective July 1, 1977. The new rates are designed to more closely align rates for calls to Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands with the current rates for all interstate Long Distance calls within the forty-eight contiguous states. The charges for some continental interstate Long Distance calls would go up effective September 13, 1977. The combined effect of the above rate actions is designed to provide approximately a zero revenue change in Bell's estimated interstate Message Telecommunications Service revenues for this phase of rate integration.

The new rate schedules and supporting data have been filed with the Federal Communications Commission.

- Basic charges for initial minutes for all calls within the contiguous forty-eight states remain unchanged. Additional per-minute charges will increase by one cent or less for out-of-state calls up to 431 miles.
- In order to bring the charges for calls to Alaska and Hawaii more closely in line with the charges for similar calls made between the contiguous forty-eight states, the charges for the average call to Alaska and Hawaii (based on past usage) will now be reduced by 29% and 25% respectively.
- Charges for calls to Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands will be reduced as a result of restructuring and reducing the rates between the U.S. mainland and these points. Rates will be revised so that they are structured in the same way as the rates for interstate mainland calls. Charges will vary dependent upon the distance covered by the call and by the time of day and day of the week, and dependent upon whether or not the call is operator assisted. These changes in rates for calls to Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands will result in a decrease of about 24% in the charge for the average call based on prior usage.

The following examples illustrate the new Long Distance rates between U.S. mainland and the offshore localities indicated:

Mooching platform

The moral of this "story" may be to-the-quickest-go-the-spoils. The agile fellow above seems to be getting the goat of this dolorous donkey, utilizing the furry "platform" for another handout. Meanwhile, the young lad at right attempts to console the dour donkey. The four-legged brigade can be seen and petted daily at Charley Allen's Petting Zoo at the County Fair. Go in the main gate, hang a left and you're there — right in the middle of the goats, donkeys ... and all-white brahma bull!

Alameda fair has variety for families

A county fair is having your picture taken while sitting in the palm of King Kong's hand!

Or breaking all bonds of diet sanity and bulking up on pizza, German sandwiches and orange freezies.

All can be found on the grounds of the Alameda County Fair in Pleasanton and, if yesterday's attendance totals are any criteria, more people are finding out there's a Fair going on — which is where you can get those goodies or have your picture taken with King Kong.

Fair organizers are not leaving anything to chance today. It's Oakland Day, Piedmont Day, Realtors Day and Ladies Day.

Gates open at 10 a.m. and close at 10 p.m., though the carnival will remain open past 10 at the discretion of management. Prices are $2 for adults and 50 cents for children 6-15.

First post for the races, which drew 6,746 Tuesday, is 1:30 p.m. Total attendance Tuesday was 15,288.

For the first three days of the Fair, a total of 46,046 persons have checked through the gates, compared to 28,071 at last year's strike-inhibited exhibition. The '77 count is still behind the record pace of '75 when 55,845 had checked through during the first three days.

Sheep judging is scheduled today from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the livestock area. Home economics demonstrations are set once again in the Young California Building from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. And the popular Art-in-Action will feature the works of the Oakland Art Association at 12 noon in the art exhibit area.

Livermore vocational education students will be featured betwee 3 and 4 today in an auto mechanics competition with students from Oakland, Hayward and Fremont.

The Mitchell Marionettes will perform once again at 3 and 5 p.m. in the lawn area and Dick Harward's working border collies are slated at 3:30 and 5:30 in the livestock area.

Guitarist-singer Jose Feliciano closes out a two day run with performances at 7 and 9 p.m. in the Amphitheatre.

County's health chief hits natal care hub shift

The state wants to turn Alta Bates Hospital in Berkeley into a premiere natal health care center, but apparently at the expense of facilities at the county's Highland Hospital.

That was the word this week from the county's health director, Dr. Stewart Gross, who complained about it to the Alameda County Board of Supervisors.

The state won't renew certain natal care grants to the county unless the county agrees to send its patients to Alta Bates, said Dr. Gross. Gross doesn't like it because of "geographical and other" reasons.

He didn't elaborate about "other reasons," but he did comment that Highland Hospital, located near downtown Oakland and east Oakland, is better situated to serve the vast majority of county hospital users. Gross said he would fight the state's edict, though not at the expense of jeopardizing any health care money to the county.

Pleasanton nixes legal fee claims by firemen

PLEASANTON — A pair of city fire department lieutenants have failed to get financial reimbursement in their labor related legal battle with the city.

Lieutenants Dennis Laurence, president of the local firefighters union, and Charles Hinkston are asking for $1,400 to cover legal costs brought on in their merit pay raise dispute with the city last July.

They said Capt. George Withers, who won an appeal over his demotion following the inadvertent burning of the historical Fallon House, was handed $3,700 to cover his costs.

Laurence and Hinkston were denied merit pay raises, but successfully defended their claim — and won pay hikes — after fighting before the city's personnel committee. They hired labor lawyer Alan Davis to carry their case.

Citing the Withers decision, the pair said they won their battle in a unanimous personnel committee vote, where Whithers' had a split, 4-2 vote.

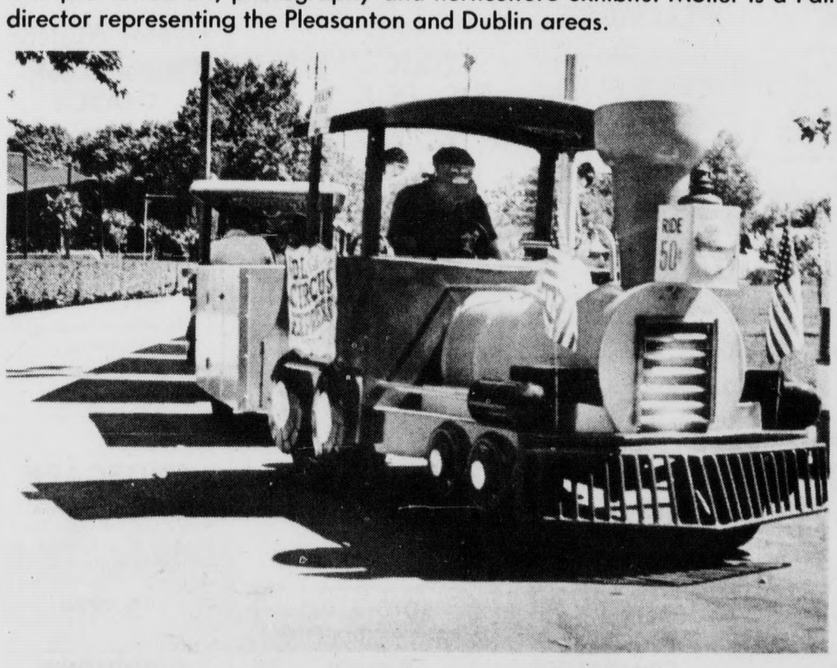
Laurence said the city is "discriminating against the (firefighters') union."

"Mr. Whithers' situation was quite different from yours," responded Mayor Robert Philcox. "It is not my opinion that we should pay the bill every time."

The mayor claims paying Whithers "was not intended to set a precedent."

Katie-at-the-Fair

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Moller of Pleasanton took a moment from the County Fair Preview Night held at the Fairgrounds to chat with a special guest present, Katie-the-Cow. The County Fair Association event, held in conjunction with the Mulberry Branch of the Children's Hospital, drew almost 700 who previewed art, photography and horticulture exhibits. Moller is a Fair director representing the Pleasanton and Dublin areas.



Asleep at switch?

No, just pausing between runs on the Circus Express. Patrons of the County Fair line cannot only see some of the exhibits but get in some "people watching" while choo-chooing about the grounds. The price is just 50 cents and the Circus Express calls "all aboard" near the Historical Society's museum and shaded park area.

Peanut poacher

Proving that two lips AND two hands are better than just the latter is this impetuous goat, who has bucked the line to get at the peanuts in the tiny vending machine. Charley Allen's Petting Zoo is located in the lawn area of the County Fair and features a plethora of barnyard inhabitants, including an all-white brahma bull. Latter will allow pictures but we wouldn't recommend trying to scale fence to pet him. The zoo is one of the many special attractions, such as the strolling bands and Mitchell Marionettes, on hand every day through July 10.

The natural cigarette is here!

It is Real

Taste your first low tar cigarette with nothing artificial added.

Your cigarette enhances its flavor artificially. All major brands do. New Real does not. It doesn't need to.

We've discovered the way to keep natural taste in, artificial out. All the taste and flavor in Real is natural.

Of course Real's menthol is fresh, natural. Not synthetic.

You get a rich, satisfying smoke. Taste you can feel. Full, natural taste.

So taste your first low tar natural cigarette. Taste Real...smoke natural.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

9 mg. "tar", 0.8 mg. nicotine av. per cigarette, by FTC method.
